foreword

Whatever be the faults or merits of the 1921 Tyee, it is hoped that it will to a certain degree stand as a record representative of a Washington year.

It has seemed fitting to the editor that the Tyee should mark "only the hours that shine". And, because the year 1920-21 has been one of many achievements, it has been difficult to select. It has been necessary to omit many things, but the aim has been to create a book typical of Washington academic and student life.

Materially the University has grown in enrollment and in the addition of new buildings. In student life the Stadium stands as the manifestation of true Washington spirit which has expanded to meet the larger student life of a larger University. Representing the West, Washington has faced an Eastern football team and an Eastern debate team, and in both cases has shown the true calibre of a great Western University.

In conclusion, the editor hopes that for those who, in after years, will remember their student life at Washington as a "Golden Age" for friendship, aspiration and achievement, the 1921 Tyee will bring back the dearest memories of college days.

The Editor.

An Appreciation

With the completion of the work on the 1921 Tyee comes a realization of the splendid co-operation and service of the many who have worked unseen to produce a better Tyee.

The staff members and those students who worked on the accuracy squad deserve praise for the quality of their work and for their promptness in handling it.

The management also wishes to thank Mr. Pratt of Lowman & Hanford, and Mr. Wiman of the Western Engraving who have willingly offered their time and advice; Mr. Grady, who has, in the opinion of the editors, taken the most satisfactory pictures the Tyee has had for many years; and the University Commercial Club, which has given much co-operation for this year's publication.

To these and many others who have worked on the Tyee must go the credit for any success which it may attain.

To Dr. Henry Suzzallo

Because as a president and executive he is largely responsible for the conception and realization of a Greater Washington—

Because as a scholar he gives to every student the highest intellectual ideals—

Because as a friend and advisor he inspires every Washingtonian to give of his best to his Alma Mater—

The 1921 Tyee is dedicated.

Dr. Henry Suzzallo

The University

SIXTY years ago, in March, 1861, clearing of the site of the Territorial University in Seattle was begun. It consisted of about ten acres, reaching from Seneca street to Union and from about Third to Sixth avenue, a site valued at about $300. Today the estimated value of the University of Washington property, grounds and buildings, is $10,000,000.

Washington Territory was separated from Oregon in 1854, and in the organic act two townships of land were set apart for University purposes. By an act of the territorial legislature, January 29, 1855, the University was located at Seattle and a branch at Boisfort, Lewis county. This act was repealed January 30, 1858, and the University located on the Cowlitz Farm Prairie, Lewis county.

Here the matter rested until the winter of 1860-61, when, largely through the efforts of Arthur A. Denny, member of the legislative council, the University was again located at Seattle, and proceeds of two townships devoted to its establishment.

Daniel Bagley, John Webster and Edmond Carr were appointed by the legislature, January 11, 1861, to select the University site. The ten acres already referred to were deeded to the Territory for this purpose by Mr. Denny, Charles C. Terry and Edward Lander.

On May 20 the cornerstone of the building was laid. The Doric pillars, now in the Sylvan theatre, were a part of the front portico of the main building. They were hand carved from white pine from Hood's Canal. The University bell was brought from Troy, N. Y., to Seattle in a sailing vessel. Besides calling students to classes, it warned vessels in the Sound in time of dense fog.

A fourth building, North Hall Dormitory, was added in 1882, and in 1892 the Astronomical Laboratory was built. The first classes met under A. S. Mercer in the winter of 1862. Lack of funds caused the University to shut down in 1868 and again in 1876. Under the administration of A. J. Anderson the University was reorganized, and since 1880 a class has been graduated every year.

By an act of the legislature, March 14, 1893, the University was relocated on its present site on the peninsula between Lakes Union and Washington, 350 acres being set aside for a campus.

Today the University of Washington has 5300 students. It has the only College of Fisheries in the Occident. Its College of Business Administration, organized in 1917, includes more than 1300 men and women. Its faculty is composed of 287 professors, associates, assistants, and other instructors. Among other things it has the largest library of any Northwest educational institution.

Washington has grown, surely. And, were it not for certain financial limitations, it would, almost without doubt, surpass its only rival on the Pacific Coast, the University of California. But then, size is not everything. For Washington has a growing body of alumni, with a growing sense of loyalty to their University, a growing interest in her, a growing solicitude for her welfare.

During the past ten months the University has made real advances toward the campus of the future. This June, 1921, finds Memorial Way planted, Philosophy Hall completed, Forestry Hall and the Hydraulic Laboratory well under way, the Columns in their final resting place—the Sylvan Theatre, and greatest of all, the Stadium, an actuality, and in use.

College Of Liberal Arts

ORIGINALLY it was the whole University, this College of Liberal Arts, occupying Denny Hall. Now it is only a small part of the University, and only a small part of Liberal Arts occupies Denny Hall. Almost all English classes are held in Denny Hall, half of them for the ignorant Freshmen and half for the student body. All foreign languages are in Denny Hall. Dr. William P. Gorsuch presides over his dramatic art classes there and gracious, how that Dramatic Art Department has grown! Glenn A. Hughes, with his play-writing classes and the little "crow's nest" theatre in the attic of Denny, is just bursting with plans for the department.

The opening of the new Philosophy Hall relieved the congestion in Denny. Not the congestion in the hall, for that cannot be relieved, since "rendez-vous" clock is there, but a great many instructors in Liberal Arts now occupy the modern arm-chairs of Philosophy Hall.

Not all the History Department moved, for Prof. Edmond S. Meany, Keeper of Washington Traditions, is still in Denny Hall. Whether or not he feared that the odor of fresh paint in the new hall would interfere with the teaching of Indian lore, the students are glad that Prof. Meany will still have his office in Denny Hall, teaching Washingtonians to cherish everything that makes Denny Hall and the College of Liberal Arts rich in Washington tradition.

Denny's front porch has shared honors along with the old clock. Its steps are worn by the many college generations that have trooped through its doors, and if given speech they could tell of the many ticket sales that it has witnessed, of fussing done on sunny days and of paddles broken on trespassing Freshmen by an ever-watchful vigilance committee.

Graduate School

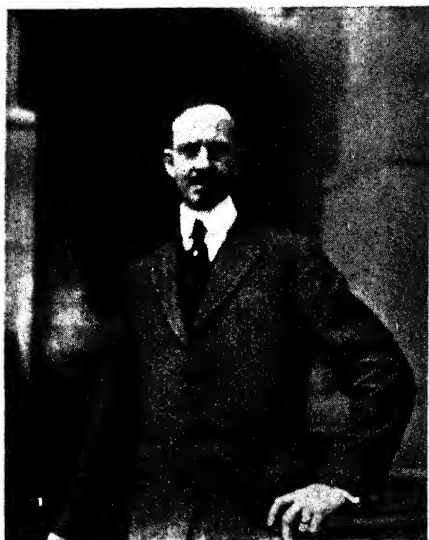

BETTERING the registration of any previous year, the Graduate School of the University of Washington has an enrollment of considerably more than 200 for the year of 1920-21. This is exclusive of the summer session. The highest registration before the war was 202. The Graduate School is made up of candidates for Master's and Doctor's degrees and university or college graduates who are studying advanced work, but are candidates for no degree. There are four students this year who are candidates for the Doctor's degree.

The Graduate School was formed in 1911. Until 1920, Dr. J. Allen Smith was its dean. In the spring of that year, Dr. Frederick M. Padelford was appointed to the position.

The faculty of the Graduate School consists of all heads of departments which offer graduate work to major students; all full professors in such departments; and such other instructors as offer graduate work for major students. There are 75 members of the faculty.

Nine states are represented by students in the Graduate School. In addition, students are registered from Canada, District of Columbia, Japan, the Philippines, and Russia.

Increasing emphasis is being laid upon the Graduate School, because it is the "crowning" school of the University. The policy of the administration during the next few years is to be for rapid expansion. The Graduate School not only trains for advanced degrees, but looks after the encouragement of faculty research.

College Of Business Administration

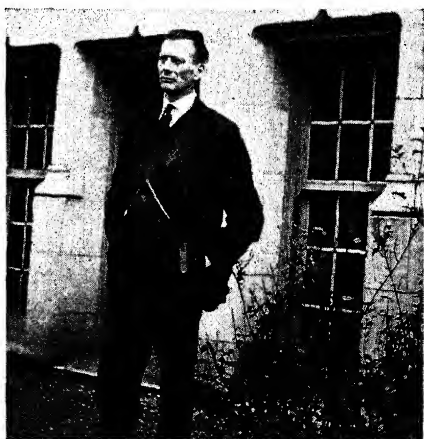

IN the fall of 1917, Dean Carleton Parker founded the College of Business Administration for the purpose of training efficient business men and women to take part in the affairs of the world. From a baby college of only twelve majors and a teaching faculty of but five, it has in four years grown to be one of the largest colleges in the United States, having an enrollment of 1450 and a teaching staff of twenty-two. Seven new professors and instructors were added during the past year.

Departments within the College are making rapid strides forward. Two years ago E. R. Thoma offered one section in accounting; this spring twenty-one sections were given.

One of the most important divisions of the College of Business Administration is its research bureau, under the direction of V. V. Tarbill. In this connection Prof. W. E. Cox has prepared a system of cost finding for the use of coal retailers in the state and nation. The cost-of-living surveys of Seattle made by the graduate seminar each three months, have been used by several large corporations to determine a decent wage scale.

A seminar course in industrial research cooperates with the Seattle Chamber of Commerce by investigating the possibilities in Seattle or on Puget Sound for new industries.

Commerce has three national honoraries, Beta Gamma Sigma and Alphi Kappa Psi for men, and Phi Sigma Chi for women. In addition, there is the Pan-Xenia Society for students specializing in foreign trade.

College Of Science

SCIENCE HALL might be called the parent of the sciences on the campus, for within its walls the nuclei of the College of Mines, Engineering, Pharmacy and Fisheries were started. The College of Science itself includes fourteen departments and not only is Dr. Henry Landes dean of one building, but his influence is felt in many parts of the campus where divisions of Science are established. Today the Observatory, the "Chem. Shack," the Gatzert Building, and Philosophy and Home Economics Halls shelter branches of Science.

Until 1903, Arts and Sciences were included in one college in Denny Hall; at that time Science Hall was built and occupied by classes in geology, zoology, botany, mining, civil, mechanical and electrical engineering.

In the fall of 1912, the College of Science was organized, with Dr. Landes, who has been a member of the faculty since 1895, as dean. The College has grown until at present it has a teaching staff of seventy-five and approximately 690 majors.

Research work has played a prominent part in the College of Science, practically every department is carrying on some work. For the past ten years, Prof. Trevor Kincaid has studied the life history of the native clam and oyster to perfect a successful method of artificial culture. It is probable that through his investigations barren acres of the Sound may be made productive.

In geology, Dean Landes has been in touch with concerns in Washington that use mineral and rock supplies, and is now working on a report of the shales and clay industries of the state.

College Of Fisheries

ALTHOUGH the College of Fisheries has been in existence but two years, six men will receive degrees this June, giving the University of Washington the honor of graduating the first students from the only College of Fisheries in the world outside of Japan.

The idea of a College of Fisheries was first suggested in 1914 by Dr. H. M. Smith, U. S. Commissioner of Fisheries, for the purpose of developing the food and game fishing industry in the state and nation. Owing to the war the college was not started until 1919.

In the spring of 1919, Dean John N. Cobb, Prof. Trevor Kincaid, thirteen students and a room in Commerce Hall, constituted the whole of the College of Fisheries. Today forty-seven students, a teaching staff of three professors, two instructors, and a student assistant, occupy three of the old naval training station buildings, Fisheries Halls Nos. 1, 2 and 3.

Complete facilities for study and laboratory work are provided. There is a canning and curing laboratory and a hatchery with capacity for handling about 500,000 eggs.

Experiments in canning fish products are made, and the results obtained given to the public free of charge. During the past year successful methods of canning crabs and shrimps were worked out, and experiments are now being made with sablefish and rockfish.

It is his aim to turn out four types of men from the College of Fisheries: The man with executive ability who has a thorough knowledge of fisheries and is equipped to go into the administrative branch of the fishing industry; the technologist, an expert in one or more lines, such as canning or refrigeration; the science research student, and the fish culturist.

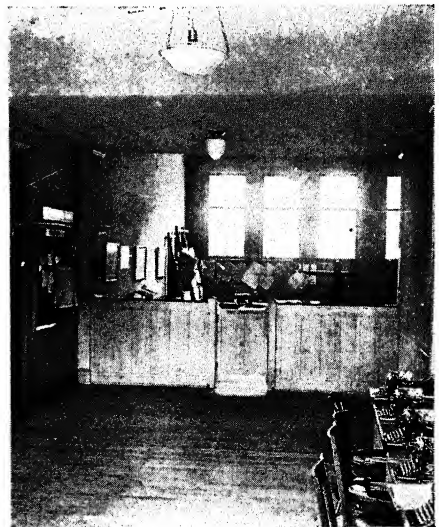

School Of Journalism

VIBRATING through the swinging door of the "Daily Shack" in the basement of Commerce Hall, the School of Journalism carries on an informal, fun-loving existence. Growing year by year, despite the terrors of a "B average" hard to obtain, 261 students are registered as majors in the School of Journalism. Only upper-division students are really enrolled in the school.

Everyone in Journalism Hall, from Dr. M. L. Spencer, director of the school, to the veriest cub reporter, is proud of the successes of the School of Journalism. In the week of January 10-15, the school arranged upon the campus, the biggest gathering of newspaper men and women ever held in the United States—a total enrollment of 454 at the Ninth Annual Washington Newspaper Institute.

The journalists were delighted in the appearance of the new literary magazine, the "Columns," and in the growth of the "Sun Dodger." They work desperately for the "Daily," that they may be considered a part of the flexible "Daily Gang," and eligible for the frivolous "Daily Busts."

Dignity cannot survive the Journalism spirit. Maurice Hicklin and Robert W. Jones, new instructors in Journalism this year, were soon as much at home with the "Daily Gang" as "Pa" Kennedy, parent to the whole school. Journalism students have the opportunity of practical experience in the printing shop of the University. Here they learn the mechanics of printing and set heads for imitation Dailies in the back shop. Sigma Delta Chi, men's honorary journalism fraternity, and Theta Sigma Phi, women's honorary journalism fraternity, have fostered several plans of advancement during the past year. One of these was the innovation of the press council, which will select the editor of the Daily in the future.

Summer School

LONG summer days and lots of sunshine are just as pleasant additions to a college term as they are to a vacation, most of the 1500 people who attended the summer quarter at Washington in July and August of 1920 would probably tell you.

Of the 1500 students enrolled in the summer term, over two-thirds were students regularly enrolled in the University. Hard work and worth-while courses were offered in practically every college and school described in the regular catalogue. A large number of the outside students were school teachers taking special courses in summer school.

Life could not be all hard work in the summer quarter, however, when the season lends its rosy glow. The campus is surely one of the most beautiful in the world in the summer time, with its fresh green lawns dotted with the gay frocks and sweaters of the summer co-eds.

The A. S. U. W. functions during the summer quarter as in the rest of the year. The two all-University mixers held during the summer quarter were pronounced the most successful of the whole year. The canoe house held its own among seasonal interests. A college night found the summer students witnessing the Booth Tarkington play, "Clarence."

Popular vote among the summer students would probably place the long, languorous summer days among the pleasantest school days at the University of Washington.

Taking the place of the Daily, the University of Washington Journal is published three times a week during the summer quarter. Students taking Journalism work directly with the staff and serve as reporters, copyreaders and proofreaders for practical experience. Also during this quarter, students dramatically inclined are given an opportunity to try out for the play which the A. S. U. W. manages.

College Of Pharmacy

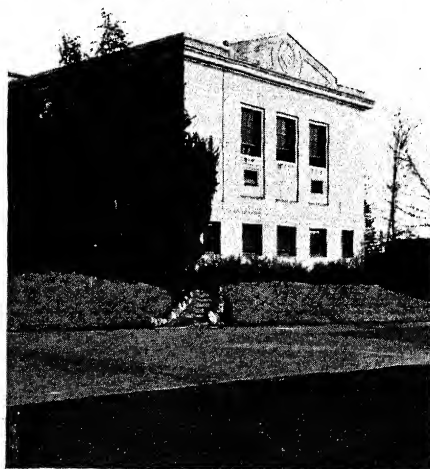

EVERYTHING from truck gardening to mixing medicinal lotions, from hoeing herbs to concocting liniment, is taught in the College of Pharmacy. Having its seat some five hundred yards from the "center of things" at Denny Hall, it is little known by the vast majority of the student body. But down in Bagley Hall, better known as the "Chem Shack," it mixes its medicines and analyzes its herbs and accomplishes a great deal that goes unseen.

The College of Pharmacy is one year older than the University itself, as far as the present campus is concerned. It was founded on July 10, 1894, after much agitation and yards of red tape. Prof. Charles M. Hill was acting dean, and Thomas M. Gatch was at that time president of the University. The faculty consisted of four instructors, and twenty students composed the remainder of the College.

Today there are more than 120 students enrolled, under the tutelage of five professors and two assistants. Charles W. Johnson is dean of the College, having occupied that position since 1904. Practically the whole "Chem Shack" is given over to its activities.

Not only in instruction in pharmacy does the College function, but also in matters pertaining to the welfare of state pharmacy and pharmacists. Dean Johnson spent considerable time during the past year in Olympia in the interests of pharmaceutical legislation. State pharmacy conventions are held from time to time in connection with the College.

But the truck gardening? Students in the College of Pharmacy have a little garden patch all their own on the campus, where they cultivate all kinds and species of medicinal herbs. Hence, in addition to their activities with test tubes and pestles and Bunsen burners, they learn something of Mother Earth. All their time is not spent in learning how to boil water. Hundreds of species of medicinal plants are grown, and the college now has as a result a very complete collection of medicinal plants.

Department Of Home Economics

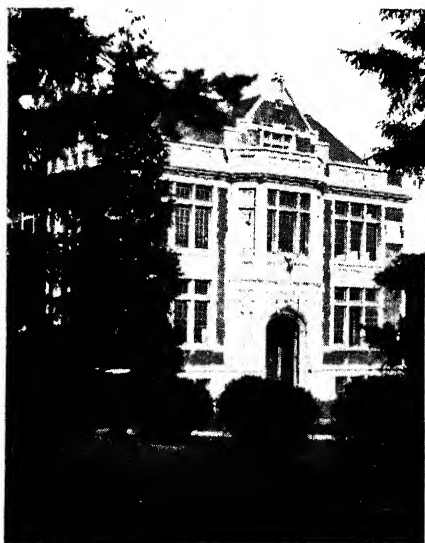

THE sight of a group of co-ed fashion models upon an artistically arranged stage is not unusual in the work of the Department of Home Economics. The practicability and artistry of the Home Economics work is frequently displayed upon the campus.

The Home Economics teaching staff this year consists of nine teachers. 225 majors are enrolled in the department, while the total number of students enrolled in Home Economics classes is over 700. The Home Economics extension classes, offered this year in the Home Economics Building upon the campus, include 125 students.

The most startling new work done by the co-eds in the domestic sciences is the work in nutrition, involving animal experimentation. The experiments are performed on white rats.

Thirty-seven courses are offered in Home Economics. These include work for four years, from that in blue-aproned cooking classes to the practice work of the Senior year, when every Senior in Home Economics must spend three weeks in the diminutive Practice Cottage putting into practical use all that they have learned in their college courses. Among the most interesting courses to outsiders are those which study textiles, home decoration, dyeing and weaving.

Excursions to bakeries, manufacturing plants and dairies give the Home Economics majors an idea of how the materials they use are prepared. Educational films are also used to supplement courses.

College Of Engineering

THE nucleus of the College of Engineering was formed twenty-five years ago, when thirteen men met in Denny Hall and organized the T-square Club for the purpose of securing instruction in mechanical drawing. Two of these men, Prof. Edmond S. Meany and Prof. Trevor Kincaid, are still in the University's service.

To Professor Meany goes the credit for starting the ball rolling that has resulted in one of the largest of the University's colleges. On March 19, 1896, he wrote to M. W. Harrington, then president of the University, stating the need of a class in drawing and advocating an organization of students for the purpose of securing such instruction.

President Harrington favored the plan, and as there was need for a course in drawing and no funds with which to start a department, the students decided to bear the expense themselves.

A Tacoma man, Ambrose J. Russel, a graduate of the South Kensington Art School, London, was secured, and in the fall of 1896 was giving weekly instruction to members of the T-square Club that had grown out of Professor Meany's suggestion.

In 1898 the University offered mechanical drawing under Almon H. Fuller who, in the catalog for 1899, is referred to as professor of civil and mechanical engineering.

This department developed rapidly, until in 1900 the College of Engineering was formed, with Mr. Fuller as dean.

During the past twenty years development has been rapid, and today a teaching staff of thirty-five aid Dean Carl Edward Magnusson in instructing the 770 majors enrolled. The College occupies four buildings and eight barracks, including a modern hydraulic laboratory, used for the first time this spring.

There are student branches of the national organizations in mechanical, electrical, chemical and civil engineering.

Law School

MURDER, arson and broken jaws are the stock in trade of the Law School, if you believe their effusions at University assemblies and similar occasions. Politics are their forte, without doubt. Voluminous tomes concerning the cases of Jones versus Brown are their joys and delights, and telling how it ought to be done is their avocation.

One hundred and twenty-one of them, eight being women, have inhabited the law library and surrounding class rooms on the second floor of Commerce Hall during the past year. This is an increase of almost four hundred per cent from the original enrollment of twenty-six, when the school was formed in May, 1899.

Dean John T. Condon was the faculty of the school at that time. His personal collection of law books was the library. The school rooms were down town, separated from the rest of the University.

Increase in the size of the school, and other causes, brought about its removal to the Denny attic in 1903. Since that time its enrollment has increased steadily, the library has reached the total of 25,000 volumes, the most complete law library in any Pacific Coast educational institution, and the faculty is composed of six men.

Dean Condon, still head of the School, is also dean of the faculty. Others on the faculty are Harvey Lantz, Ivan W. Goodner, Clark P. Bissett, Leslie J. Ayer, all professors of law, and J. Gratton O'Bryan, lecturer in law.

Three honorary societies have their homes in the Law School: Phi Delta Delta for the women, and Phi Delta Phi and Phi Alpha Delta for the men. This is nearly enough to embrace all the students in the school. So, with their murder and arson and voluminous tomes and honorary societies, the students of the Law School prepare themselves for future life and the exercise of their oratorical and syllogistic abilities.

College Of Mines

“EMBRYO miners are taught to wash, but not by the tub and wringer method,” said Joseph Daniels, associate professor of mines and metallurgy. “We use a machine called ‘jigs’ for the coarse coal and concentrating tables for the fine coal. In this machine all the clean coal rises to the top and the rocks and heavy materials sink to the bottom and are thrown away.”

Students in the College of Mines, in making a detailed study of the coal washery at one plant, reduced the losses in the waste from three tons to nine-tenths of a ton, which is a saving of $10 an hour. At another washery a saving of $7 an hour was effected. A waste pile at one mine was found to have 100,000 tons of coal worth $2 a ton, which was recovered by the use of the coal washery.

Research work in the ceramics division of the College of Mines is being carried on by Ernest Goodner, graduate student. In this division clay and other raw materials are tested out to determine the best use of the material.

Two other graduate students, James F. Bonner and Arvid E. Anderson, are doing research work in electrical metallurgical problems. They work with the utilizing of raw materials of the Northwest.

The Department of Mines was ordered established by the Board of Regents in 1894. In the catalog for 1900-01 it is listed with the College of Engineering as the School of Mines, with Almon H. Fuller as dean. The mines laboratory was then located in the basement of Denny Hall, but was later moved to its present building in the old University power house. In 1911 the College of Mines was established as a separate body, with the purpose of giving a thorough technical training to those desiring to become mining engineers.

Milnor Roberts is dean of the College of Mines, which at present has an enrollment of 80 regular students, with 20 more in the short course.

College Of Fine Arts

TRILLS, smocks and art-gum represent the three schools in the College of Fine Arts. Shrill vocal crescendos or thunderous piano passages disturbing phlegmatic classes in Meany Auditorium, remind the rest of the University of the presence of the 15 musical instructors teaching 162 ambitious musical students in the basement of Meany Hall.

The installation of Sigma Chapter of Phi Mu Alpha, men's honorary musical fraternity, was hailed as a noteworthy addition to honorary societies. Twenty charter members were initiated. Mu Phi Epsilon, women's honorary musical fraternity, presented concerts during the year. The Spring Opera, "The Enchantress," was given in April.

Smocks have been generally adopted in the Art Department. The Art Club is enlivening the cream colored corridors of Philosophy Attic by a display of colorful posters. Artistic posters by art students have advertised campus affairs throughout the year. The Art Club has brought to the campus several Seattle artists to speak before the students upon practical subjects. The old Bookstore Building, vacated by the art classes for Philosophy Attic, still holds classes in sculpture.

Lights burning at all hours of day and night in the old frame building behind the Bookstore, are evidence of the "hard working Fine Artists." The architects do not deny the fearful tales of the work required of every man and woman in their department, and work under the great spur, competition. Fun and friends they have also, for he who works with all his might will play the same way.

Library School

STAMPING ground of the fusser, the boner, the bluffer, and Mr. Average Student, the old Library Building also houses one of the younger schools of the University. The Library School, presided over by William E. Henry, graduated its first class in 1913. Up to date there are 115 graduates of that school, all over the United States, making practical use of their knowledge gained at Washington. The teaching staff of the Library School consists of five members. They also function in the general administration of the Library.

The Library School emphasizes the fact that the work of the librarian is a work of social service, closely akin to the school teacher's in educational importance. Seldom does a man graduate from the Library School, but each year an average of twelve women leaves Mr. Henry's guidance to help take care of the public reading.

The Library School, save for the ever-helpful librarians, is not visible to the eyes of the student body. It is the general study hall for the student body, a quiet, shadowy place with an atmosphere of learning about its book shelves that seems to deny knowledge of date-making and fussing that enliven the hours of study.

The old building is crowded now. It was not built to accommodate a student body of 5000. In fact, it was not built for a library at all, but as a social hall at the time of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. The Library of the University of Washington has one feature that other universities have not, the fact that the thousands of books upon the library shelves are accessible to the student body.

College generations come and go but the library remains the same.

College Of Education

THE College of Education is one of the largest colleges in the University, the average enrollment for the year, including summer school, being more than thirteen hundred. In 1913 the Department of Education became the School of Education, and in 1915 the School became the College of Education. Frederick E. Bolton, the present dean, has held that position since the College was first given that rank.

Every year many students who are graduated from the College go out into the state to teach. When they are graduated they receive a five-year normal diploma which entitles them to teach in the country schools for that many years. Upon the completion of two years' successful teaching they are awarded a life diploma.

Dean Bolton keeps a careful watch over the people in educational work and can tell at a moment's notice, by turning to his card catalog system, the classification of every student enrolled, as to work taken and grades received.

But more than this he keeps in personal touch with those in education through impromptu conferences and more than one discouraged freshman has left his office feeling that he had a friend who expected great things of him and whom he must not disappoint.

Dean Bolton continues to keep up this friendly relationship after graduation and it is a rare week that does not bring a letter telling of the joys and sorrows some graduate is experiencing in the teaching profession.

There are two honorary fraternities in the College, Pi Lambda Theta, for women, and Phi Delta Kappa, for men.

The lecture rooms and laboratories of the College of Education are now located in the Home Economics building. It is the plan of the building committee of the University to construct an Education building near the Home Economics building.

Officers' Reserve Training Corps

DOWN in the far corner of the campus near Lake Union is a large, brown building, the Officers' Reserve Training Corps Armory.

Here it is that 1100 college men learn to "present arms" and to execute all other maneuvers that a good soldier must know.

There are three units in the R. O. T. C.: the infantry, the coast artillery, and air-service division, which was added to the curriculum this year.

Colonel Charles L. Phillips, U. S. A., in command of the local units, has eight commissioned officers and sixteen enlisted men, detailed here by the United States Government, on his teaching staff. All equipment, including "O. D." uniforms and guns, is furnished by the government. For two years all able-bodied men students are required to drill two hours a week.

When the uninitiated student sees an officer in leather puttees, with rows of shining disks down either shoulder, walking on the campus, he may know that he is beholding one of the cadet officers.

After completing two years of drill, the cadet may, on signing a contract with the government, take the advanced course. On the completion of the four years' work he is eligible to a commission as a second lieutenant in the Officers' Reserve Corps.

During the summer the government holds camps for cadets at various points throughout the country. After one year of drill any cadet may go to one of the basic camps, with his transportation and his expenses paid by the government.

College of Forestry and Lumbering

OUTDOOR life is the feature of the work done in the College of Forestry and Lumbering. This College is recognized as one of the best of its kind in the United States, and students from many countries come here yearly to study. This year Russia, Sweden, Chile, the Philippines, England and Canada have been represented.

Hugo Winkenwerder, dean of the College, is an authority in his line, and his name is found in Who's Who.

This year there was an average enrollment of 150 students each quarter.

It was first given the rank of college by the University in 1915.

The Forestry Club is an organization of members of the College who are actively interested in the department. Any student in the College is eligible for membership. This year there were about 75 active men in the organization. The Club meets every two weeks and prominent lumbermen and others interested in the study of forestry often take part in the program.

Xi Sigma Pi, the national honorary forestry fraternity, founded at the University of Washington in 1908, has a roll of six chapters. Requirements for election include high scholarship, practical experience, participation in the activities of the Forestry Club, and Junior standing.

The College is going to move in the near future to the new building located below Rainier Vista. This building will eventually be used for the forest products laboratories, the plan being later to construct a larger edifice for the actual class and lecture rooms.

As a part of the College work, many field trips are taken during the year in the forests and through the lumber camps. During the last quarter of the Senior year all students majoring in logging engineering are required to spend their time with one of the professors doing practical work in the logging camps.

The Forest Club Annual is a publication which has been put out every year since 1913 by students and members of the faculty of the College of Forestry. It is circulated throughout the country and is considered the foremost of its kind.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

A. S. U. W.

A. S. U. W. Business Staff at Work

INCLUDING every student in the University, the Associated Students of Washington handle all athletics, debates, music, and this year has started into the social calendar by inaugurating "A. S. U. W. parties."

Governed by a Board of Control, composed of three alumni, three faculty members, a general manager and nine students, the A. S. U. W. now is handling a yearly budget of $172,000, nearly twice as much as the previous season. Financing a $500,000 Stadium remains the most ambitious task of the Association. Finances come from such activities as athletic contests, as well as from A. S. U. W. cards issued to students upon registering, costing $10 or less, according to the time they are to be in school. Business is handled through the general manager's office.

The selection of coaches, the rewarding of athletic letters and blankets, new student building projects and all other general business of the students is left to the Board of Control.

Maintenance of a Bookstore for members of the University is another of the Association's duties. The Bookstore sells goods to the students at a discount, clearing little more than expenses. The business last year totalled over $153,000, a rise from $116,000 in 1919.

The University of Washington Daily is the most far-reaching publication owned and operated by the A. S. U. W. Subscription to the Daily is granted with the A. S. U. W. card. The Daily manager handles $20,000 worth of business annually. The editor is selected twice a year by a Press Council, composed of the head of the Journalism Department, the former editor, the president of the A. S. U. W., secretary of the A. S. U. W., and a student elected by the Daily staff.

The Tyee is the only other publication controlled by the A. S. U. W.

The annual Glee Club trips through Washington and neighboring states are managed by the A. S. U. W. The annual Spring Opera is also an A. S. U. W. production.

The building of the Stadium has enlarged the field of A. S. U. W. activities. This year a special committee, consisting of members of the Board of Control, has been appointed to secure features for the Stadium. They plan to bring concerts, pageants and spectacular events to Seattle during the summer months.

The A. S. U. W. parties, initiated and financed by the Board of Control this year, are given for all the students in the University. They have already become an established part of student life and are doing much to foster a loyal, democratic Washington spirit.

Every woman upon matriculation becomes a member of the Women's League. Any woman in the League is eligible for office.

The work of the Women's League is to encourage women's activities and to create a feeling of friendship and democracy among its members. To do this there are many groups organized in the League. Among these are the Student Advisory Committee, which provides every new girl with a big sister whose duty it is to acquaint her with campus life; the Dramatic groups, which offer girls interested in dramatics an opportunity in programs for the League meetings; the Discussion groups, the Hiking clubs, and the Deputation, which committee explains University activities to high school girls.

Washington At Play

ON Armistice Day, November 11, following an impressive ceremony conducted by Prof. Edmond S. Meany, 60 trees were dedicated and planted, one for each Washingtonian who gave his life in the service. The trees were planted along Memorial Way, which, when it is finished, is to extend from Science Hall to East Forty-fifth Street. Preceding the dedication ceremony, a memorial program was held in Meany Hall.

SIGMA DELTA CHI INITIATION

The initiation of Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalism fraternity, has come to be a campus tradition. In dress suits, the initiates direct traffic in Denny Hall, using canes and police whistles. They also put out a special edition of the Daily.

Junior Day activities included Junior breakfast, water sports, moving-up assembly, a lighted canoe parade in the evening, and Fir Tree initiation. The University district was decorated with electric signs, welcoming Dartmouth, and advertising the game. Acacia won the prize for the best stunt in the Stadium parade, with a fife and drum and the slogan, "In '76 Washington beat the men from Hanover. Let's repeat."

CAMPUS DAY

White collars are barred and hard work is the rule on Campus Day, which comes the last Friday in April. It is always heralded by the Chimes, ringing in discord, as they are being polished by some energetic Freshman. The men, in their oldest clothes, armed with picks and shovels, make new paths, clear out underbrush, and beautify the campus.

FALL

Home-Coming Week was changed this year to the fall, since more alumni plan to come back during the football season, and particularly for the Thanksgiving game. This year the Stadium was dedicated

Later in the afternoon there is a Varsity baseball game.

In the evening everyone who has "worked for Washington" turns out for the All-U informal dance at the Gymnasium.

RE-DEDICATION OF THE COLUMNS

The four Columns, which have stood just north of the flag pole since 1911, when the graduating class brought them from their original place on the first University building, have been moved to the site of the old music pavilion, where a sylvan theatre is to be built.

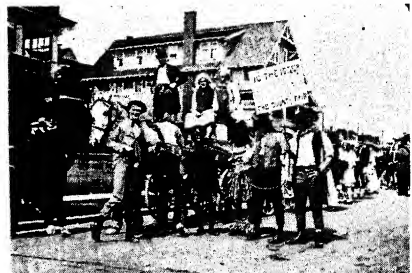

Men at Work

A special feature of this Campus Day was the re-dedication ceremony for the Columns in their new setting. Professor Meany officiated and the honor societies, Tolo, Oval and Quad, represented the absent class of 1911.

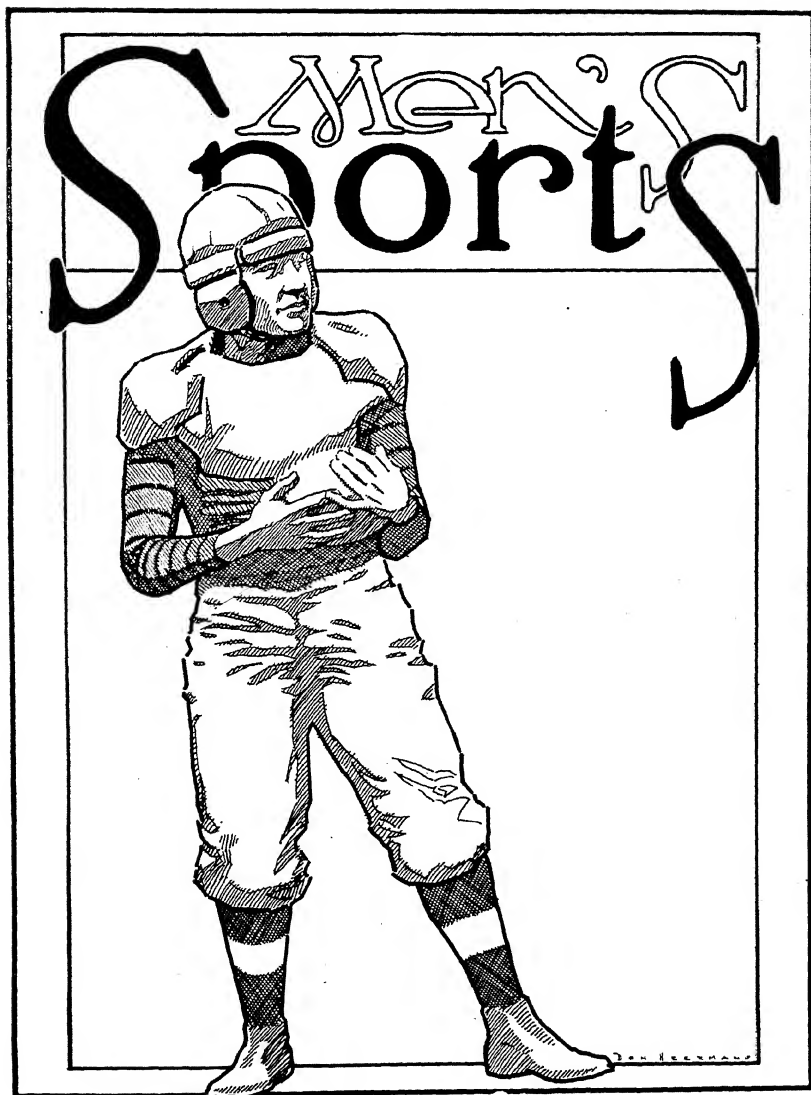

COUNTY FAIR

The County Fair is now only a memory. It died immediately after April 17, 1920. The classes which the county jail and its subsequent are to come will only "hear tell" of green chalk mark, the fortune teller, the jitney dance, the Follies, and "Dardenella," and the many unique stunts of the "pee-rade" which advertised the Fair.

It is planned to give pageants and more spectacular events in the Stadium hereafter, to take the place of the County Fair.

The 1920 Season

FROM the standpoint of games won and lost, the 1920 football season was perhaps one of the most unsuccessful the University of Washington has experienced. But there is another angle to college football to which the football public and more particularly the student body was effectively awakened. It was proved that it requires something infinitely more than competent coaching and a squad of players to turn out a team that will win games. That factor is student interest and student cooperation.

A brand new element of "fight" was inculcated in the Washington student body as a result of the lesson learned last fall. At the close of the season, especially noticeable at the Dartmouth game, the Washington student body was behind its Purple and Gold warriors at every turn. A crippled eleven that had been defeated in the majority of its games all season, met and fought to a standstill one of the best grid-iron machines in the country when Washington played Dartmouth College in the new Stadium, November 27. Although the easterners went back to Hanover victorious, the Washington team accomplished the impossible by holding its opponents to an even score in the first half of the game. It was only in the second period of the contest that victory for Dartmouth became assured. Many a sheet of "dope" was upset by the remarkable come-back displayed by the Purple and Gold eleven in holding the strong eastern combination to a comparatively low score.

From a financial standpoint the 1920 season was an overwhelming success, as Washington football was viewed by greater crowds than have ever patronized University athletic contests here.

Football Squad

Looking Back

WHEN the call for the initial turn-out came September 15, two weeks before school opened, about 45 men responded and were put through preliminary paces by Coach "Stub" Allison and Assistant Coach Loren Solon. Many of the lettermen from the 1919 eleven returned. When college opened, September 24, the men were approaching first-class condition.

The first game was won by the Purple and Gold, and there followed three heart-breaking defeats at the hands of Montana, O. A. C. and Stanford, before the team went to Eugene to meet Oregon. The Montana game marked the absence of Captain "Ted" Faulk from the line-up, and Washington lost a hard, up-hill game by a small margin. Both the O. A. C. and Stanford games were won by drop kicks after the opposition had failed to cross the Purple and Gold goal. It is significant that the Washington line was impenetrable in both contests. Stanford won 3 to 0 by the aid of a phenomenal kicker, probably the best in college football, and O. A. C. won 3 to 0 through having a player who could boot the ball between the uprights.

Despite a noticeable lack of support from the student body and from downtown fans, Coach Allison produced a fighting aggregation, one whose line was recognized as being as good as any in the country.

"Stub's" remarkable personality instilled a spirit of love in his men, and the result was a team that was the embodiment of fight. His record here is unsmirched; he has won a permanent place in the hearts of all real Washingtonians.

The loss of Captain Faulk during a big part of the season, due to injuries and illness, was a hard blow to the Washington team, as the old veteran was practically an indispensable part of the Washington team. Ted completed his college career last December, after having won football letters under Coaches Dobie, Hunt and Allison.

Coach Leonard Allison

Captain Ted Faulk

Enoch W. Bagshaw, Coach-Elect

Looking Ahead

THE dopesters are reluctant to venture an opinion regarding Washington's prospects for the 1921 football season. The selection of Enoch W. Bagshaw as coach has encouraged many of the fans, as the former Purple and Gold player has made a remarkable record with gridiron teams at Everett High School, where he has coached since his graduation from the University of Washington.

Coach-elect Bagshaw comes to Washington at a peculiar time. He is returning to his alma mater to serve her again on the football field, not as a player but as a coach. He comes at a time when college football is at its zenith, and with only high school coaching experience to serve as his foundation. In spite of the handicaps, however, we have faith in Enoch Bagshaw and believe he will deliver the goods.

In Ray Eckmann, captain-elect, the Washington eleven will be led by one of the most popular men who has ever worn Washington mole-skins. The little speed merchant is a marvel both on defense and offense at the gridiron game, and great things are expected of him this year. He has already been named as all-Coast material.

The 1921 football schedule calls for six games, four of which will be played in the Washington Stadium. It is possible that a seventh contest may be staged with an eastern eleven, this also to be played in Seattle, probably December 3. The schedule, at present, shows the following games:

Oct. 8—Whitman College, Seattle.

Oct. 15—University of Montana, Seattle.

Oct. 22—Oregon Agricultural College,
Corvallis.

Nov. 5—Leland Stanford University, Seattle.

Nov. 12—University of California, Berkeley.

Nov. 24—Washington State College, Seattle.

The Games

WASHINGTON 33, WHITMAN 14

A victory over Coach "Nig" Borleske's "Missionaries" opened the Varsity season for Washington, October 9. For the first time in years Whitman offered real resistance, and gave Varsity supporters a chill by scoring two touchdowns in the first half, leading at the end of the period by two points.

Assistant Coach Loren Solon

After the third quarter opened, the game was never in doubt. Two touchdowns by Harper and one by Dailey were scored in the second half.

Forward passes and open-field running were effectively worked by both teams. Captain Garver and Earl Tilton threaded the Sun Dodger defense for long runs on criss-cross and pass formations time and again in the first period.

Captain Ted Faulk scored first for the Varsity, kicking a perfect field goal from the twenty-eight yard line. A pass from Abel to Faulk in the first quarter netted the first touchdown of the season.

Whitman came back in the second quarter with two touchdowns. The Missionaries outplayed and outguessed Washington for the entire quarter. After the half the Sun Dodgers took a brace and ran over three touchdowns.

This was the only game of the season where Washington started without the handicap of several injured players.

WASHINGTON 14, MONTANA 18

Two fast Montana quarterbacks and a driving rain were the deciding factors in Washington's second game, October 16.

Harry Adams and Porter, Montana's quarterbacks, carried the ball over for the Grizzlies on two of the most spectacular runs ever made on

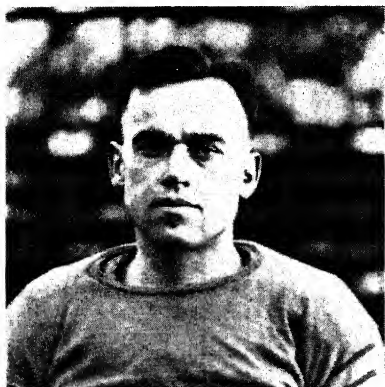

Trainer "Hec" Edmundson

Varsity Scoring Against Whitman

Denny Field. Adams caught the ball on a punt and, running 60 yards down the center of the field, shook off the entire Washington team and crossed the white line just before the referee's whistle ended the first half. Porter repeated in the second period with a 52-yard run on an intercepted forward pass.

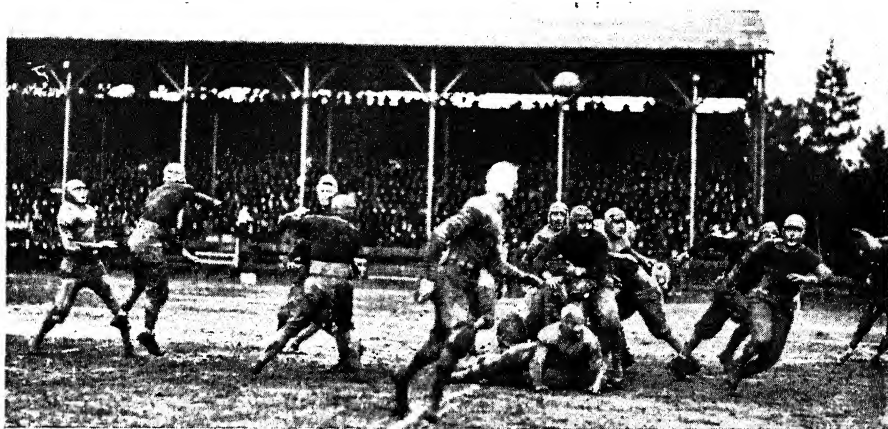

Washington opened the game with a rush, sweeping down the field for a touchdown in the first eight minutes of play. Montana braced, and not until after the visitors had rolled up 18 points could the Sun Dodgers score again. The Varsity started a march down the field, only to lose the ball on a fumble. The loss was irrevocable and Montana took the game.

WASHINGTON 0, OREGON AGGIES 3

Washington did not win against O. A. C., but on the day the Aggies humbled the Sun Dodgers, for the first time in 15 years, Washington won one of the biggest victories in the history of the University. For Washington fought. Not only the team and the squad fought, but the student body fought. Threatened by a slip in the fine old spirit that has marked the Purple and Gold, discouraged by Montana's unexpected victory, and handicapped by the failure of the student body to support the team, "Stub" Allison and his warriors met the Aggies and, by fighting every minute, held them to a 3 to 0 score.

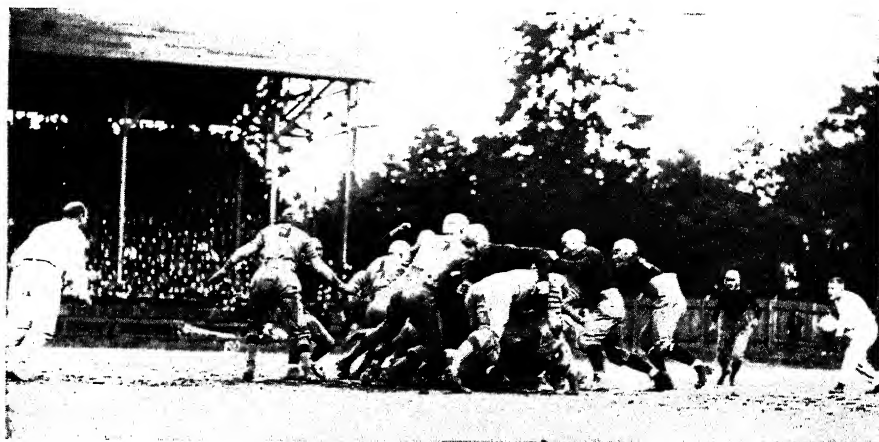

Only the kicking of Crowell decided the game against Washington. A place kick in the second quarter, with "Hughie" McKenna holding the ball, was the only score of the game.

"Johnny" Wilson, Quarter

Washington Stopped by O. A. C.

The Sun Dodgers outplayed O. A. C. most of the game, but failed to push the ball over the line when within striking distance. McKenna saved the O. A. C. goal in the first quarter by intercepting a pass in the shadow of the goal posts.

WASHINGTON 0, STANFORD 3

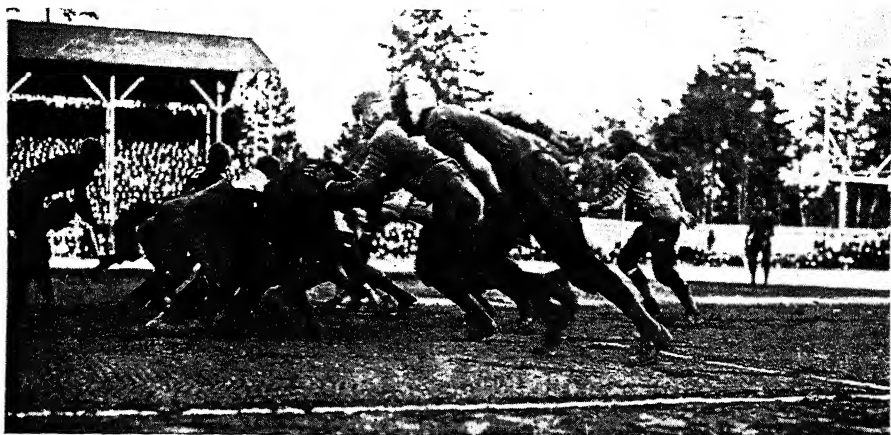

"Dink" Templeton, Stanford's sensational kicker, was the undoing of the Varsity, November 6, when the Sun Dodgers went down to the second 3 to 0 defeat of the season. This game marked the passing of historic Denny Field, where Washington teams won their conference championships for nine successive years. The next game at Washington saw the opening of the new Stadium.

Ed. Hobi, Guard

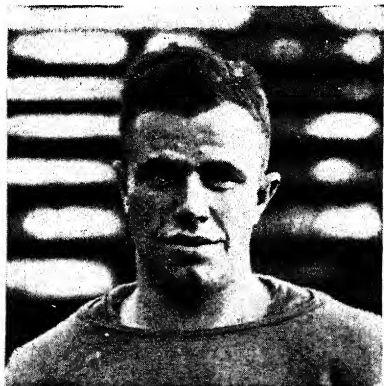

"Gus" Pope, Guard

Stanford vs. Washington

Without Templeton's phenomenal kicks Stanford would have been unable to score. Early in the first quarter, Eckmann drove the ball to Stanford's 30-yard line, where Washington was stopped. Wilson called Captain "Ted" Faulk from his place at end for a place kick, but Faulk booted the oval six inches under the crossbar. Washington did not have another chance to score.

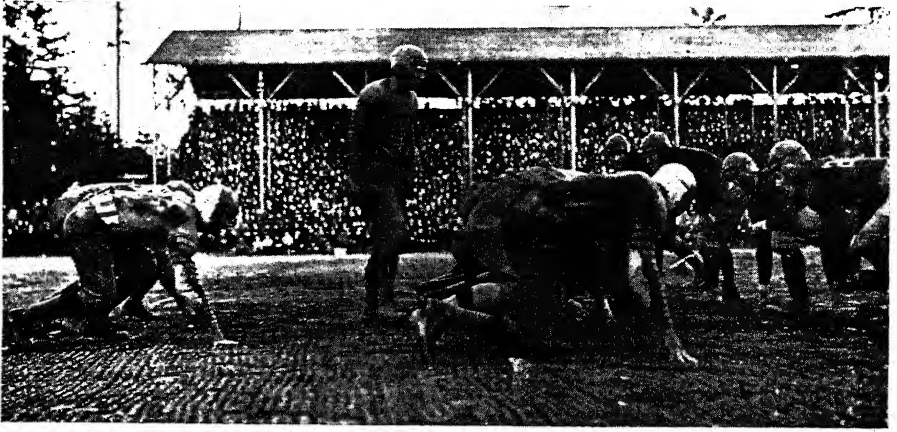

Playing straight, old-fashioned football, Washington outplayed and outguessed Stanford, only to lose the ball on downs and fumbles, and have Templeton send it 50 or 60 yards back up the field in long, twisting spirals. The Varsity line, from tackle to tackle, was ploughing through the Cards on every play, but the reserve power to drive the ball for consistent gains was lacking.

WASHINGTON 0, OREGON 17

When the Purple and Gold lost to Oregon by a 17 to 0 score, November 13, at Eugene, Washington rooters gathered in the rain on Denny Field to receive the returns. After the Frosh had lost to the Washington State babes, and discouraging returns came over the wire from Oregon, gloom settled over the crowd. The Oregon game was a hard one to lose and the fact that it made two successive victories for the Lemon-Yellow increased the hardship of the defeat.

But down in Eugene there was a different story that could not be told over the wires. The hardy little group of Purple and Gold rooters that traveled by train and track, foot and Ford, to see the game, knew that Washington, although outplayed and outgeneraled was never out-fought.

Dartmouth Game

A wet turf field and "Bill" Steers were two of the deciding factors that opposed the Sun Dodgers at Oregon. Playing their first game on a field as slippery as ice, the light Varsity backs failed to gain, while Steers ploughed through the Washington defense and scored all 17 points for the Lemon-Yellow.

WASHINGTON 7, DARTMOUTH 28

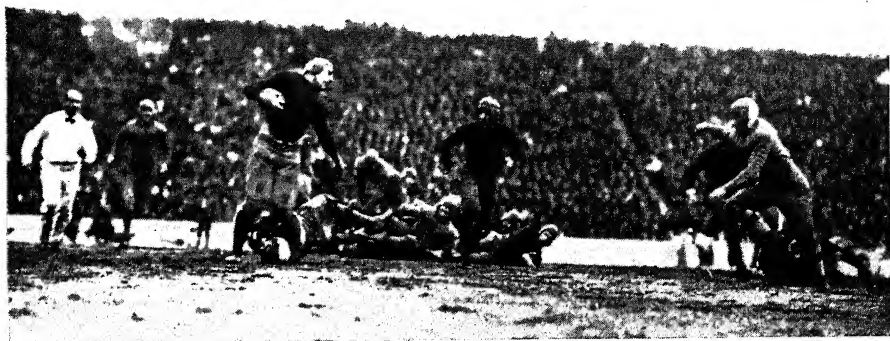

A perfect autumn day followed a week of incessant rain. The new Stadium, packed to capacity with 30,000 fans, was a blaze of color. Bands played the war hymns of the rival schools and the cheering of the immense Washington section vied with that of the Green supporters. Over the gridiron a seaplane hummed, while a detachment of troops from Camp Lewis honored the Governor with their salute.

Dartmouth Game

It was a day to be remembered. Dartmouth, inaugurating a new policy of intersectional football for eastern universities, had crossed the continent to dedicate the third Stadium in her history. Washington, completing a football season marked by a string of defeats, was fighting her last battle.

Lined up against the Sun Dodgers was one of the finest teams produced in eastern football. With two all-American men on her eleven and a perfect system of coaching, Dartmouth College was regarded as one of the Atlantic leaders.

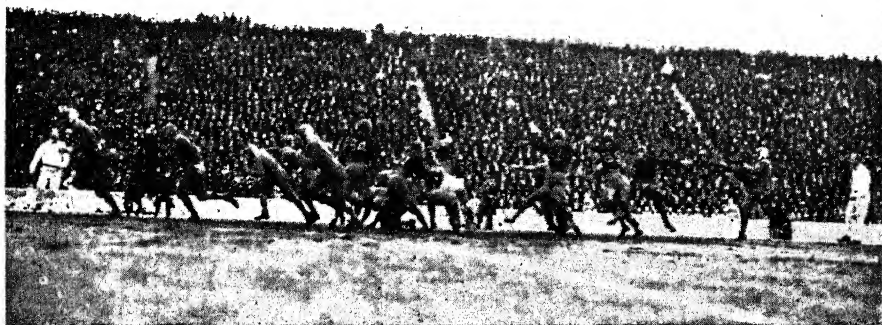

The Washington team that took the field was the finished product of a season of gruelling work. Men with years of experience played beside men in their first Varsity game.

Dartmouth Game

Bob Abel, Washington quarterback, tore through the opposing line in the first five minutes of play and, blocking Robertson's drop-kick, scooped up the ball and raced 60 yards to the Dartmouth goal. It was the first score in the Stadium and Washington's only tally during the game.

Dartmouth scored twice in the third quarter on two passes to Lynch, after forcing the ball within striking distance by open-field playing. During the final quarter Jordon corralled another long toss from Robertson and crossed the line for the final score. Dartmouth completed seven passes out of eleven while Washington made three good in thirteen attempts. The final count stood 28 to 7.

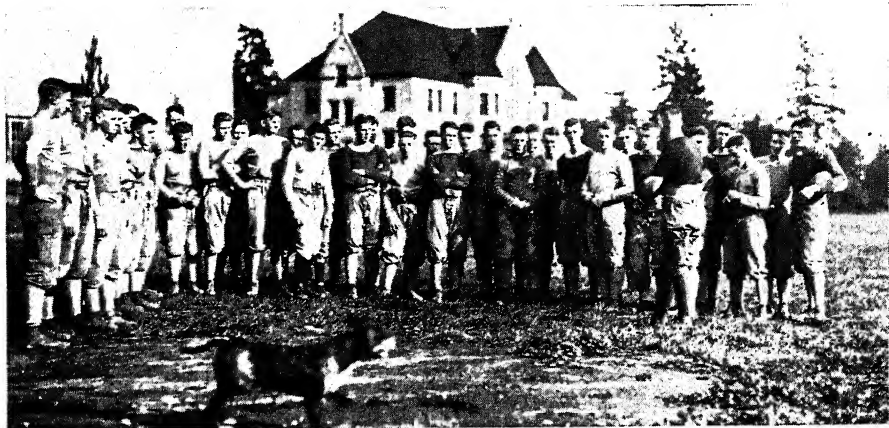

Frosh Coach "Sandy" Wick

Asst. Coach Ben Tidball

Freshman Football

Frosh Squad

FRESHMAN football smashed the University turn-out record last fall when 105 Frosh answered the call of Coaches "Sandy" Wick and Ben Tidball for the initial practice. This number dwindled to about thirty men, from which the team was finally selected. The eleven produced was fast and scrappy and compared well with yearling teams of former years.

The Babes met Everett High School in the smokestack city on October 23. Penalties were frequent in this game and the high school champs emerged victorious by a score of 20 to 0.

The Bellingham American Legion team was the next outfit the Frosh tackled, and the University athletes dealt the northerners a 20 to 0 defeat. The game was played at Bellingham.

Failure to get the breaks in the game with the Washington State Frosh on Denny Field, November 13, resulted in a 20 to 0 victory for the Farmers.

Coaches Wick and Tidball were considerably handicapped during the season with injuries to Pittwood, Bellman and Chadbourne, but the aggregation of fighters that represented the class was in every way a credit to the entering students. Although victories were few, the men learned thoroughly the rudiments of college football and are expected to form the basis for good Varsity material.

Basketball Season

WITH a schedule of fourteen conference games, the University of Washington basketball five landed second place in the percentage column, having lost but four contests. With apparently mediocre material to work with, but two lettermen being available, Coach "Hec" Edmundson perfected one of the best basketball machines that has represented the Purple and Gold and one that is hailed by the critics and fans who saw the team in action as the fastest combination on the coast.

The four-man defense system Edmundson built up was unbeatable in mid-season and only an unusually stiff schedule prevented Washington from copping the conference pennant. California, with a comparatively easy schedule, claimed the championship by virtue of having lost fewer games than any team in the conference, although the Bears played but two games each with both Stanford and Washington, thereby eliminating the possibility of losing more than two games to each of these teams, considered beyond a doubt the coast leaders.

Captain "Arch" Talbot and Leo Nicholson, both veterans of the 1920 team, were the only lettermen who turned out this year, leaving the problem of building a team out of almost entirely new material facing Coach Edmundson. That "Hec" was equal to the occasion was demonstrated in every game in which the Purple and Gold men played during the season.

With Talbot holding down his old forward berth, Edmundson completed the quintet with Lewis, who played on the 1920 Frosh team, at forward; Bryan, who captained the 1920 Frosh, at guard; Crawford at the other guard, and big Heine Sielk, whose accurate shooting distinguished him throughout the season, at center.

The five which took the floor to represent Washington for the 1921 season was probably the most unbalanced aggregation in point of appearance that has been seen in the Washington gym in many a day. "Windy" Crawford, diminutive running guard, was one of the smallest men in conference basketball, and one of the hardest and pluckiest fighters. His consistent shooting and speed on the floor marked him as one of the most valuable men on the team.

"Jim" Bryan, the stationary guard, weighs 195 pounds and is proportioned along the lines of Gibraltar. His phenomenal checking of some of the fastest forwards in the Coast conference race won for him mention as all-Coast guard material.

"Heine" Sielk, Washington's elongated center, was perhaps the best shot on the team, and when the "big fellow" had his shooting eye for an evening the Purple and Gold combination was unbeatable. Sielk hovered continually in the vicinity of the basket, according to Edmundson's style of play, and could invariably be counted on for his quota of field goals.

Coach "Hec" Edmundson

Captain Arch Talbot

Evan Lewis held down the forward berth opposite Talbot, and played in the same marvelous shooting fashion which made him the sensation of the 1920 Freshman team.

Captain "Arch" Talbot won undisputed title as the hardest fighting forward in western college basketball. His speedy floor work and well-nigh perfect handling of the ball, coupled with an ability to locate the hoop when field goals counted for wins, made him the most indispensable unit in the Washington combination. "Arch" shot free throws and field goals with equal skill and his loss through graduation will be keenly felt next year. He was the only veteran of the 1920 team who made a letter this year.

With four men of this year's five on deck when Coach Edmundson issues the call for basketball men next season and plenty of material to draw from, the prospects of a conference championship for 1921 look especially brilliant.

The season's schedule included contests with W. S. C., O. A. C., California, Oregon and Stanford.

The first conference game played was at Pullman against Washington State, on the night of January 21. The Purple and Gold walloped the Farmers by a 26-24 score. W. S. C. staged a come-back on the following night, however, and beat Washington 23-15.

The first conference game in the local Gymnasium was played January 28, when the Sun Dodgers took the opener from Oregon, 36-31. Washington walked away from the Lemon-Yellow aggregation the next night by a score of 50 to 26. The aggressive offense displayed by the Purple and Gold five in this game was too much for Oregon to check, Washington passing the leather almost at will around the Lemon-Yellow quintet.

Washington went to California and tangled with the Berkeley five, February 4, losing a heart-breaking struggle by the small margin of one point, after apparently cinching the contest by out-playing the Bruins. Repeated fouls called on the Sun Dodgers won the game for California. The score was 33-32. The Sun Dodgers came back the following night and dealt the Bruins a 23-20 defeat.

Palo Alto was the scene of the next struggle, where Washington lost to Stanford, February 7, by a 25-14 score and, February 8, by a 30-22 score. Both contests were hard fought and fast, the strain of the two-game series with California telling on the Sun Dodgers' strength.

With ten days intervening in which to recuperate from the arduous southern trip, Washington decisively defeated Stanford at Seattle on the night of February 18, 28-25. The game was one of the fastest ever seen on the local floor, as was the game on the following night, when Stanford was again beaten, this time by a score of 17-16. The second game was a thriller from start to finish, the outcome being constantly in doubt until the final whistle.

With Washington leading the Cardinals, 17-16, and but a few seconds to play, Adams, the big Card back guard, took the ball down the floor by a sensational dribble until he was directly under the Washington basket, ready to score the winning goal. Washington rooters gasped and "Jimmy" Bryan, the Purple and Gold guarding ace, met Adams' rush and saved a score. The play had not concluded when the closing whistle was blown, ending one of the most exciting struggles that Seattle basketball fans have ever witnessed.

Washington clearly demonstrated its superiority over its early-season form by swamping Washington State in a two-game series here February 22 and 23. The first game ended with the Sun Dodgers at the big end of a 54-21 score. The Pullman five lost the second contest, 28 to 12.

O. A. C. gave the Washington fans quite a thrill when the Beavers threw a scare into the Sun Dodgers, March 4, in the first game of a two-game series. The tail-enders in the conference race played a fighting game against Washington and threatened the Purple and Gold basket throughout the contest. The score was 29-24 in Washington's favor. The Sun Dodgers walked away from the O. A. C. five on the following night to the tune of a 47-19 score.

The wind-up of the Pacific Coast conference struggle found California leading, with a percentage of .800, winning eight and losing two games. Washington landed second place with a percentage of .714, averaged from ten victories and four defeats. Stanford ended up in third place at .700, having won seven games and lost three. Oregon, W. S. C. and O. A. C. followed in the order named.

In addition to the conference games played, Washington also played four non-conference games. The first contest was played in Seattle against the College of Puget Sound, January 14, the Sun Dodgers rolling up a 100-7 score against the Tacoma collegians. The Spokane Athletic Club quintet offered the next competition for the Purple and Gold five. The game was played in Spokane, January 20, the night before the first game with Washington State, Washington taking the long end of a 43-25 score.

A two-game series with the University of British Columbia in Seattle, February 25 and 26, resulted in two more victories for the Sun Dodgers, the first contest ending in a 48-14 score and the second in a 42-15 count.

The following players were awarded letters at the end of the season: Capt. Arch. Talbot, James Bryan, Henry Sielk, Evan Lewis and Randall Crawford. James Bryan was chosen to captain the 1922 Washington aggregation.

"Ob" Gardner

"Stub" Allison, Frosh Coach

Data compiled for the season finds Sielk the leading scorer on the Washington five, with a total of 148 points, or 74 field baskets. Lewis ranks second, with a total of 98 points, or 49 field goals. Capt. Talbot comes third in point of goals scored from the floor, with 44, or 88 points. Crawford is next, with 54 points, or 27 field goals, and Bryan is last, with 8 field goals, or 16 points. Bryan is rated as being one of the best scoring back guards in the conference.

Lewis, Crawford, Gardner and Bryan have two more years to play for Washington, while Sielk has one more season.

Freshman Basketball

Frosh Squad

THE Freshman basketball season ended a few weeks early, but it was nevertheless successful. Fourteen games were played, in twelve of which the yearlings were victorious. Both the teams that defeated the Frosh in the early part of the season were later beaten by the first-year men.

At the call for Frosh basketball, 125 men responded. It was Coach "Stub" Allison's difficult task to cut this squad down to a working size and at the same time maintain his policy of giving every man an equal chance. He did this, however, and in a few weeks had a working squad of 20 men, who stayed with him the remainder of the season and practiced faithfully. Coach Allison was pleased over the spirit shown by the squad. At least ten of these men, he says, are of real Varsity caliber, and will be strong contenders for next year's team.

Three trips were taken by the first-year men, one to Lacey, where St. Martin's College is located; one to Yakima, and one to Roslyn. The two defeats of the season were at the hands of Yakima High School and St. Martin's College. In both cases the Frosh regained their laurels by defeating their opponents in return games.

The season was a success from the standpoint of games won, but, more than that, it was a success because of the spirit of faithfulness shown in practice, and the clean fight displayed by the team.

Those who received numerals were: Capt. Low, A. Peters, Gundlach, Anderson, L. Peters, Hughes, Froude, Brigham.

Wrestling

SEVEN Washington wrestlers won their "W's" in the mat sport this season, participating in the following meets: Alumni meet, Seattle Y. M. C. A., Washington State College and Oregon Agricultural College. The intercollegiate regulations stipulate that a man must, in order to win a letter, participate in one conference and one other regular scheduled meet, regardless of victory or defeat. This year's letter winners are: Capt. Clayton Bolinger, Senior, 135 pounds, second year, who will not be here next year; Otto Bardarson, 158, Junior, third year, who will not be eligible next year; Ken Howe, 158, Sophomore, first year, back next year; Joe Crumb, 175, Sophomore, first year, back next year; Claude Potter, 175, Junior, first year, back next year; Captain-elect Noble McCredy, 145, Junior, first year, back next year; L. M. Carter, 125, Sophomore, first year, back next year.

According to Coach "Jimmy" Arbuthnot, wrestling has just seen an unusually successful season at Washington, due to the exceptional interest shown in the sport. In the picking of the grapplers who represented Washington on the mat this year, 142 try-out bouts were held. Coach Arbuthnot believes that the experience gained from this year's competition will be particularly valuable next year.

ALUMNI MEET

The Alumni wrestlers proved too experienced for the Varsity in the meet held in the Gymnasium, February 7, and won out with three falls for nine points, against the Varsity total of one fall and four decisions for seven points.

Wrestling Squad

Virgil "Doc" Hancock, former Washington and University of Chicago champion at 145 pounds, showed that he had lost none of his class by throwing Howe, 158 pounds, twice. The third bout went to a draw.

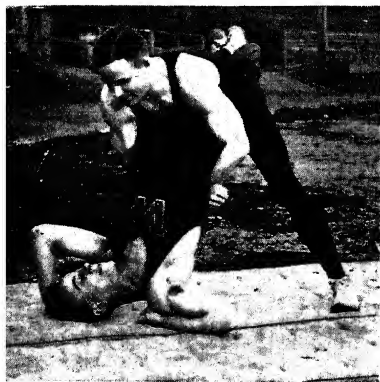

Mack Carter showed up well against Blaine Gibson, three-year letter man and Coast champion at 125 pounds. The first bout was a draw, but in the second Gibson proved too clever and secured a fall. Carter came back in the final and won a decision on aggressiveness.

Joe Crumb easily outclassed Mike Hardy in the heavyweight class. Hardy outweighed Crumb, but seemed to be out of condition. Crumb won on a fall and a decision.

Noble McCredy won two decisions from Walt Williams, former 145-pound Washington star. Both men seemed to be suffering from lack of training.

Otto Bardarson and Potter, both Varsity men, met in a preliminary match. Bardarson winning with a fall. Capt. Clayton Bolinger lost his chance to wrestle in these bouts when Hal Johnson failed to appear. This was the first public appearance of the Varsity mat men for the year.

SEATTLE Y. M. C. A. MEET

Captain Bolinger and Carter

Coach "Jimmy" Arbuthnot

Seven out of eight matches went to the Varsity wrestlers in the meet with the Y. M. C. A. in the Gymnasium, February 17. The Varsity men seemed to be in much better shape than the "Y" men.

In the heavyweight division, the "Y" won its only victory, Bardarson winning from Potter by one fall. Potter secured two decisions, but was unable to pin his opponent to the mat.

At 125 pounds, Earl Woodworth, Varsity second-string man, won a decision and a fall from Thoreson. Mack Carter, Varsity, 125 pounds, did not wrestle.

Captain Clayton Bolinger, 135 pounds, and Miller of the "Y", wrestled three rounds, the first being a decision for Miller, but Bolinger came back with a fall in the second and a draw in the third, thus giving him the decision. D. V. Caldwell also won his match from Thomas at this weight, with a decision and a fall.

Noble McCredy took two falls from Aldrich in the 145-pound class without much difficulty. At the same weight, I. A. Aalto took his match with Erick by the two-fall route.

In the light-heavyweight division Ken Howe won from Herrick by a decision and fall in two bouts. Otto Bardarson also secured a fall and two draws from Lend.

WASHINGTON STATE MEET

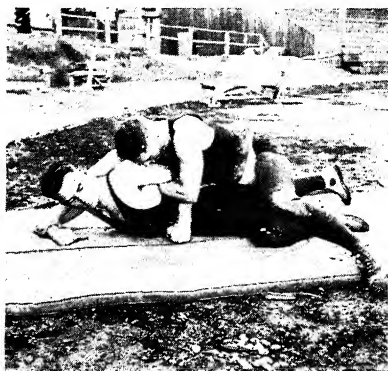

With only one fall scored in five matches, Washington wrestlers won four of their five matches in the meet with Washington State College at Pullman, February 12.

Captain Clayton Bolinger and Gay,* of the W. S. C. team, staged the big match of the evening, at 135 pounds. After three rounds neither man had obtained an advantage and the judges called for an extra round. Bolinger was on the aggressive a few minutes longer in this round and was awarded the decision. Both men were exhausted.

Mack Carter won three straight decisions from Hanson, W. S. C., in the 125-pound class. Carter had his opponent clearly outclassed, but was unable to obtain a fall.

Crumb and Potter

Howe and McCredy

Noble McCredy secured the only fall of the evening in his final match with L. Boggs, W. S. C., at 145 pounds. He secured two decisions in the previous rounds.

White, Washington State's star 158-pounder, easily took three straight decisions from Ken Howe. Howe showed lack of experience in these bouts. This was the only match lost by Washington.

In the heavyweight class, Joe Crumb won from Nicholson, W. S. C. The first bout went to a draw, but Crumb took the next two on decisions.

Thorpe, a former W. S. C. wrestler, refereed the bouts.

O. A. C. MEET

Washington mat men were defeated by a score of 5 to 4 in the meet with O. A. C. held in the Gymnasium, February 26. O. A. C. won in the 135, 145, and 158 pound classes, while Washington took the 125 and 175 pound matches.

Otto Bardarson and Sam Armstrong, heavyweights, met in the feature match, Armstrong winning from the Varsity man by a decision in the third bout after the first and second had gone to draws.

Mack Carter, at 125 pounds, took two decisions from Bob Fulton. Carter showed a great deal of speed and class, considering this is his first year on the mat.

Claude Potter, substituting for Joe Crumb in the 175-pound division, won from A. Madsen with a fall in their first bout.

Captain Clayton Bolinger, 135, lost two straight decisions to Alonzo Patchin of O. A. C. This match was fast, but the O. A. C. star was on the aggressive a few seconds longer than Bolinger.

Noble McCredy, Washington's 145-pounder, lost out to Bud Fish with one fall and a decision. This meet concluded the schedule.

TACOMA Y. M. C. A. MEET

Washington took two of the six wrestling matches, and one boxing match in the meet with the Tacoma Y. M. C. A. in Tacoma, March 16.

Interclass boxing champions were used on the boxing team and the Freshman champions composed the mat team.

Howe, wrestling at 175, took his bout from the Tacoma heavyweight without much difficulty. Poy, at 135, won his contest with a fall.

Clitherow at 135, Hicker at 158, McRae, heavyweight, and H. Seagraves at 145, lost by decisions to the Tacoma mat men. Coach J. G. Arbutnot scheduled this meet in order to give his yearlings some experience.

"Chuck" Johnson, 135, took the only boxing bout for the Varsity.

Crew Season

WITH the California regatta six weeks early this year, Washington crew opened intensive training in January. First call for fall turnouts found sixty Varsity men and as many more Frosh in the barges November 8, for a six-weeks' training period. Coach Ed Leader called the men again after the opening of the winter quarter for final formation of Frosh and Varsity crews.

Coach Ed Leader

Washington crew worked under adverse conditions all season, yet developed one of the best boats in crew history. The Sophomore oarsmen, veterans of the 1920 Freshman regatta, furnished much of the material for the Varsity shell and clearly showed the value of developing and encouraging the yearling crew.

California put everything into developing a shell that would defeat the Sun Dodgers on the Oakland Estuary. Stanford dropped out of crew for lack of a suitable course, and the "Bruins" absorbed the Cardinal shells and crew outfits.

Washington received offers from Wisconsin University and the Duluth Boat Club to row in the east this year. Whether Washington will row in the Poughkeepsie regatta depends on the season's showing and financial arrangements.

Captain "Chuck" Logg

Nederlee

THE CALIFORNIA REGATTA

France

By a scant margin of five feet the University of California crew triumphed over the Washington oarsmen, April 9, in the most exciting race that has ever been seen on the Oakland Estuary. Outweighed twelve pounds per man, the Purple and Gold crew was not out-fought. The shifting of the estuary course at the last minute before the race proved the undoing of the Purple and Gold shell, for the Southerners were acquainted with the tricky turns in the course.

The Californians stacked a veteran crew against the inexperienced eight of Washington. The wonderful coaching of Ed Leader, Washington coach, was demonstrated when his men actually out-rowed the Bruin eight. The strength and experience in the California shell could not be overcome, however. The Southerners maintained a constant lead of a few feet throughout the race. At the two-mile point Washington began to pick up the lead of a length held by California and so terrific was its sprint that but a few feet separated the bows of the respective shells when they crossed the finish line in a spectacular driving finish.

California staked its all on this race and won. Washington competes in athletics with a view to future years. Next year California will lose by graduation seven of her 1921 oarsmen. Washington will have five of this year's crew back in the fold, with the remarkably strong Frosh crew, which walked away from the California Frosh, to pick from.

Magnusson

Luft

1921 Crew Squad

The story of the race the Washington men rowed on the Oakland Estuary this spring is an epic. True Washington fight stands out all over their attempt to overcome impossible odds set up by California. Even southern newspapers acclaim the Purple and Gold eight as the equal of California in everything but bulk and experience. When Washingtonians fight like did the Washington crew and lose, then defeat is sweet. Other years are coming.

Stroke—George Murphy, stroke on the Frosh crew, 1920, against California Frosh. Captain-elect for 1922.

Seven—Charles Logg, captain, veteran of two years' crew. Logg led his men through all difficulties with characteristic fight. He had little opposition for his place in the shell.

Shaw

Ingram

1921 Crew on Lake Washington

Six—Sam Shaw. Shaw was another of the Sophomores that made good in Leader's squad.

Five—Bob Ingram. Ingram added weight and fight to the Varsity shell and maintained his place all season.

Four—"Roly" France. The fourth Sophomore in the Varsity shell. His weight and "pep" made him a valuable man.

Three—Clarence Magnusson, Varsity crew man in 1920. Magnusson rowed bow against California last year. His experience was a big asset to the boat.

Two—Herman Luft, letter man from 1919 crew and Senior in college.

Bow—Louis Nederlee, Leader's third veteran. Nederlee rowed in the 1920 regatta on Lake Washington.

Cox—Russ Nagler. Third year in the shell.

Freshman Crew

1921 Frosh Crew

THE 1920 Freshman crew did itself proud in walking away with the California event by six lengths. Every ounce of strenuous preparatory work was more than justified in the moment of victory when the yearling oarsmen of Washington crossed the line far ahead of the babes from the southern institution.

One hundred men turned out for the preliminary fall training. Many lacked weight and were forced to drop out of the competition. Training was commenced in earnest in January and continued until the day of the California regatta, May 24. The race was rowed before the eyes of thousands on Lake Washington from Leschi to Madison Park.

Although the Washington crew was one of the heaviest Frosh crews that has ever rowed on Lake Washington, it was outweighed by the California boat about four pounds per man. Washington's Frosh rowed in hard luck the greater part of the season, losing several men who had been counted on for seats in the first shell. Ingram, Butler, France and several others were counted out of the running as a result of illness and injuries contracted during the season. At the last minute before the race, Butler, bow, was stricken with the mumps. "Stew" Polson replaced him and, although comparatively inexperienced in the bow seat, filled the breach.

The following were given 1923 jerseys: Polson, bow; Lonseth, 2; Doyle, 3; Benz, 4; Shaw, 5; Parkins, 6; Dunn, 7; Murphy, stroke, and Bergsted, coxswain.

Baseball

HAVING met every conference team on the Pacific coast and defeated all but California, the University of Washington baseball team won the newspaper championship of the 1920 coast conference. The Bears beat Washington in a two-game series but were not considered coast contenders, due to the fact that they played only southern teams in addition to Washington. The Purple and Gold nine was generally considered the coast champion.

Coach "Stub" Allison

The season opened in Seattle, April 23, when Washington walloped Oregon by a 6 to 2 score. Washington repeated the following afternoon by defeating the Lemon-Yellow aggregation 11 to 5.

Another double-victory series for Washington occurred in Seattle April 27 and 28. Oregon Aggies came up loaded for bear and were sent back to Corvallis after suffering a 2 to 0 defeat in the first game and a 9 to 5 beating in the second game.

Washington lost the first game of her two-game series with Washington State here May 3, when the farmers dealt the Purple and Gold players a 5 to 4 beating. Washington came back on the afternoon of

1920 Squad

May 4, however, by slipping a 7 to 4 victory over on the Cougars.

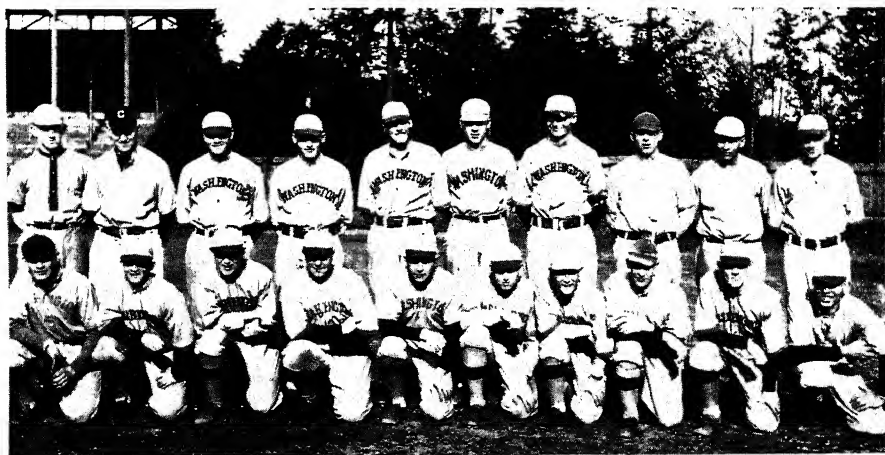

The series with W. S. C. marked the last games witnessed on the home lot, for the team started an extended trip into the enemies' territory, taking in California, Stanford, O. A. C., and Oregon. The series with the University of California resulted disastrously for the Purple and Gold, the Bears winning both games May 11 and 12. The results of these battles were 5 to 4 and 4 to 3, both close defeats for Washington. The final outcome in both instances was in doubt until the final outs were made.

Washington is justly proud of the remarkable showing made by her exponents of the national pastime last season. Out of the fourteen conference games played, eight were Washington victories.

A large share of the responsibility for Washington's good baseball record last year rests in the capable hands of Captain Percy Chamberlain, who has twirled Purple and Gold teams to many victories in the past. Due to graduation, "Perp" will not be back in a Washington uniform this season. The captaincy has been voted to "Bill" Foran, outfielder, whose lusty wallops with the willow are expected to chalk up many a run in the Washington scoring column this spring.

"Bill" Foran, Captain

At the present writing it appears that the line-up for the season will be decided between the following men:

Pitchers—Leonard, Rode, Gardner, Harper, Liston and Setzer.

Catchers—Land and Maloney.

1st Basemen—Maloney and Barrett.

2nd Basemen—Welts and Torrance.

3rd Basemen — Marriott and Zamberlin.

Shortstop—Bakke and Harper.

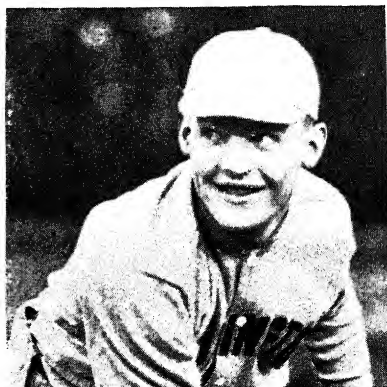

Outfielders—Capt. Foran, Miles, McMahon and Lowe.

With the exception of the following seven letter men: Foran, Maloney, Zamberlin, Land, Leonard, Rode and Torrance, the remaining eleven players are Sophomores who played with the winning 1923 Frosh-Varsity which trimmed the 1920 Varsity in a three-game series.

Coach "Stub" Allison is confident of a winning combination this season, the players having been turning out faithfully since the early winter months getting into perfect condition. Allison's idea is to get the team into mid-season shape in time for the opening contest.

Six pre-season practice games were held by Allison's men in preparation for the opening game. Two contests with the Seattle P.I. League team, one with the Asahi nine and three games with the Camp Lewis aggregation are planned on by the coach to put the Varsity into first-class shape when the conference season starts.

The first conference game will be played at Seattle April 21 against the Lemon-Yellow team from Eugene. The same teams will tangle again on the afternoon following. The Oregon Aggies will offer the next opposition for the Varsity at Seattle April 26 and 27. These two games will be followed by a two-game series with the College of Puget Sound here.

Perry Land

On May 4 and 5 Washington leaves the native heath to meet O. A. C. at Corvallis. Oregon will be tackled May 6 and 7 at Eugene. Then follow two games with the P.-I. League teams either at Victoria or Tacoma. The Seattle All-Stars will furnish a battle for the Varsity at Seattle on May 18.

The next conference game will be played at Pullman, May 20 and 21, when Washington crosses bats with the W. S. C. Cougars. The conference season as it now stands closes May 26 and 27 with two games with Washington State at Seattle. As yet no southern teams are scheduled to meet Washington on the diamond.

The Varsity will perform again in Seattle against Waseda University, of Japan, July 6, 7, 8 and 9.

According to present plans, the Purple and Gold ball tossers will embark for Japan some time late in August for a forty-day exhibition tour of the Orient, returning about the first of November. It is expected that, in addition to games already scheduled with Waseda University at Tokyo, the Varsity will meet other teams while on the summer tour. The players will attend summer session of college in place of the fall quarter, which will be missed owing to the trip to Japan.

Although the baseball schedule this year does not include as many conference games as did last year's schedule, the season of 1921 will be one of the most elaborate ever undertaken by a Purple and Gold baseball squad. The trip to the Orient will consume close to two months' time and the summer games to take place here will spread the season over a space of almost eight months.

Including the practice games with teams not in the Pacific Coast baseball conference, the schedule of games to be played on the coast numbers thirty-four contests, probably the most arduous schedule that has been arranged for a Washington team.

"Torchy" Torrance

"Dode" Brinker, Freshman Coach

Freshman Baseball

1921 Frosh Squad

THE Freshman baseball season for 1920 constituted an unbroken string of victories. Every game on the schedule proved the first-year men's superior knowledge of the national pastime. The team was probably the best yearling nine ever produced at this University.

When the first April breezes began to blow, Coach "Dode" Brinker, former Varsity mentor and big leaguer, began working with about 70 would-be Ty Cobbs. A process of elimination soon brought this number down to a working squad. The team produced was exceptionally speedy and played the game with the ease of a well-oiled machine.

The games and scores follow:

April 14.....	Frosh, 2;	Broadway High School.....0
April 27.....	Frosh, 6;	West Seattle High School, 1
April 29.....	Frosh, 5;	Franklin High School.....0
May 1.....	Frosh, 10;	St. Martin's College.....5
May 7.....	Frosh, 12;	Whatcom High School.....1
May 8.....	Frosh, 9;	St. Martin's College.....7
May 11.....	Frosh, 9;	West Seattle High School, 0
May 14.....	Frosh, 9;	Whatcom High School.....3

A three-game series with the Varsity resulted in two victories for the Frosh, something unprecedented in Washington's baseball annals.

Numeral jerseys were awarded to the following: Lowe, Allen, Feek, Setzer, Shields, Marriott, Harper, Miles, Gardner, Baake, Welts, Bayless, Barrett, Kellogg, Guichon and Liston.

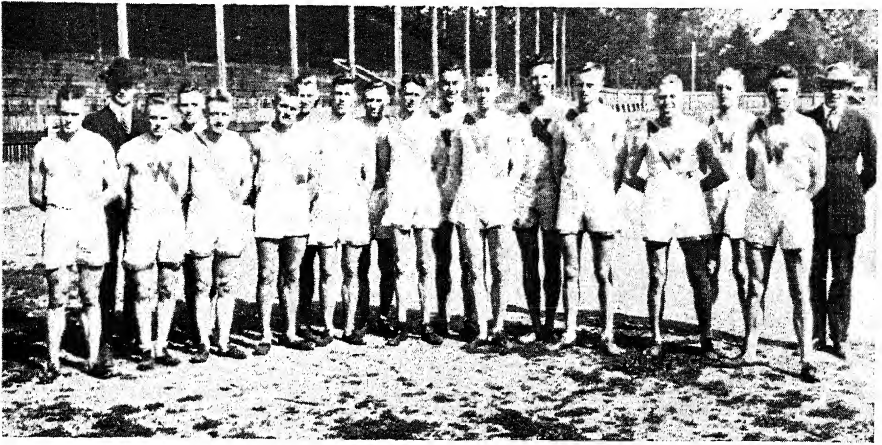

Track

DEGREES of latitude seemed to determine standings in Coast track last season, for the southern schools took Washington's measure with unfailing regularity. The late season and poor track facilities proved the undoing of the Sun Dodger track and field squad, and the only triumph was against Washington State.

Captain-elect "Gus" Pope was the outstanding figure of the track season, and is the mainstay of the team this year. Pope was Washington's only entrant in the Seventh Olympiad at Antwerp, and the only athlete from the state to place in the games. Pope took third place in the discus event with a thrown of 42.13 meters or about 138 feet, 2½ inches. In the tryouts at Harvard, Pope tossed the circle 146 feet, 3 inches, for a new American record. By a mark of 140 feet, 11 inches in the dual meet with Washington State he raised the Coast mark which had stood for several years.

1921 Track Squad

1920 Squad

Washington's track season opened with the novice meet April 10. During the fall quarter and before the opening of the Varsity season about two hundred men kept up training on the campus and in the old armory. First call was sounded in February by Coach "Heck" Edmundson and the squad went into training in March.

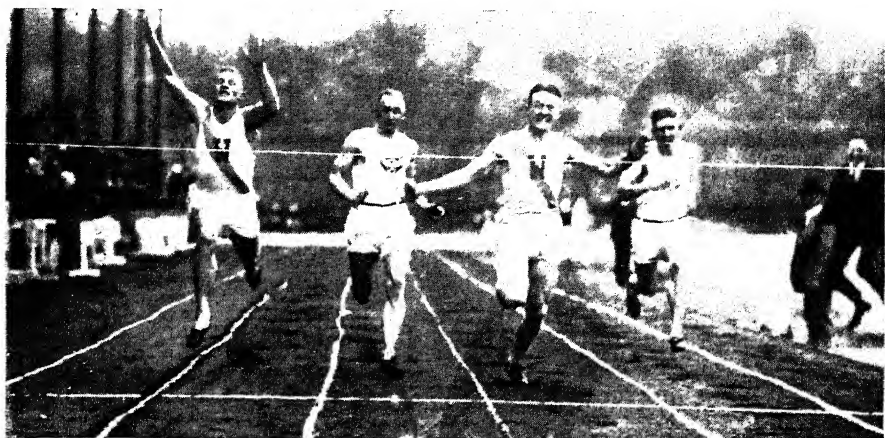

The novice meet, an innovation of Coach Edmundson's, was a try-out for all men who were new at Washington track or had never made a Varsity letter. New material was uncovered and a general idea of the strength of the squad.

The relay carnival, April 24, was so successful in its introduction that its place as an annual event on the track calendar is assured. Seven colleges from the four Northwest States entered the meet, which was won by Oregon State College with 20 points. Washington took second with 14 and the other teams finished: Montana, 7; Oregon, 4; Idaho, 4; Whitman, 3; Montana Wesleyan, of Butte, 1.

Perfect weather made the time fast in the meet for an early season. Montana's fast sprint squad took the 400-yard relay in 40:02, or a shade over ten flat for each century.

Washington won the two-mile relay by the splendid work of Davis and Douglas. O. A. C. took the four mile, mile and 880 events.

The first dual meet, Washington State at Seattle, April 30, went to the Sun Dodgers, 77 to 54. In this meet Pope broke the Coast record in the discus.

"Crum" Dailey was high point winner in the meet with 19 of Washington's points to his credit. Dailey won the hundred in 10:01, took the broad jump and placed in the 220 and hurdles. Pope made sixteen points for the Varsity.

A feature of the meet was the work of Eldon Jenne, of W. S. C., in the pole vault, who later won the pole vault at the Coast conference and Northwest conference meets and competed at the Olympic games.

Captain "Crum" Dailey

Oregon downed Washington in the second dual meet, May 8, on Denny Field, by two points, 66 to 64. The breaks were against Washington all afternoon, Oregon winning in the field events. Bartlett, of Oregon, beat Pope in both the discus and shot.

Washington took the lead in the track events, but failed in the field where chance gave Oregon the meet. Frankland won the 120-yard hurdles only to be disqualified by knocking down the final bar. Pratt and Sundeleaf ran a dead heat in the quarter which Pratt would easily have won later in the season.

Foster of Oregon, captain and sprinter, won individual honors with 18 points and Hargreaves took second with 11. Pope won high honors for Washington with 10 points.

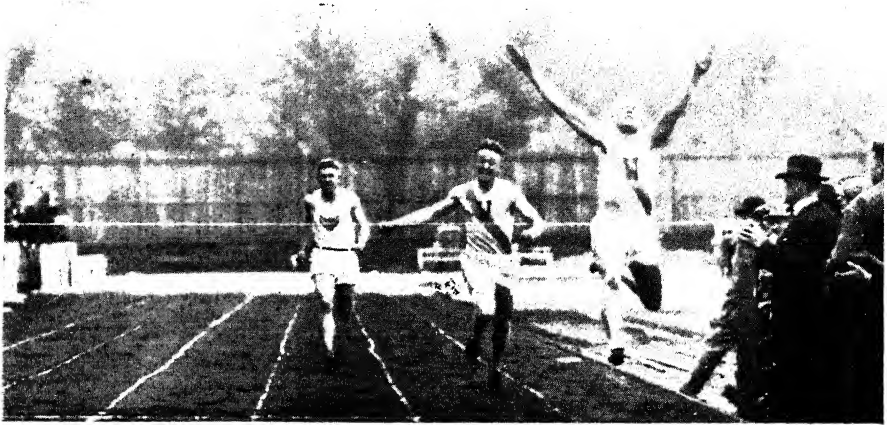

P. C. C. MEET—MAY 15

Unfortunately, the Washington team did not reach Palo Alto for the Pacific Coast Conference meet until the day of the preliminaries. Washington took fifth place in the meet which California won with 51½ points. Other entrants finished: Stanford, 46; U. S. C., 25; W. S. C., 19; Washington, 12½; O. A. C., 11.

"Gus" Pope, Captain-elect

Pope had an off day and went down before Bartlett, taking second in discus and third in shot put. Frankland took third in the high hurdles and fourth in the high jump for Washington. "Swampy" Davis placed third in the two-mile run. "Ernie" Goodner tied for third in the pole vault and the relay team added another point with a fourth in the relay.

Dual Meet With W. S. C.

NORTHWEST CONFERENCE MEET—MAY 29.

The northwest conference meet at Pullman closed the Varsity track season. With Dailey out of the meet with injuries, Washington slipped to fourth place, first honors going to Oregon. The Lemon-Yellow squad showed unexpected strength, nosing out O. A. C. by three points.

Chuck Frankland took first in the high jump, clearing the bar at 6 feet 1 inch. Pope took the discus event and placed fourth in the shot. Pratt was third in the 440-yard run and Eckmann took second in the hundred-yard dash.

Jenne broke the Northwest record with 13 feet 1 inch in the pole vault. Foster, of Oregon, took the 220-yard dash in 21:04 and made 23 feet 10 inches in the broad jump.

The 1921 schedule includes the following meets:

April 9.....	Novice Meet, Seattle
April 23.....	Relay Carnival, Seattle
May 7.....	University of Oregon, Seattle
May 14.....	Washington State College, Pullman
May 21.....	Pacific Coast Conference, Eugene
June 4.....	Northwest Conference, unsettled
June 11.....	National Intercollegiate, Chicago

Freshman Track

THE Frosh competed in only two meets last spring, but they demonstrated decisively that there was adequate material in their organization for Varsity track teams of the future. Several stars were uncovered who promise to do great things for Washington on the cinder trail. According to Coach "Heck" Edmundson, Hurley, Hathaway, Anderson, Shive, Williams and Bryan were especially brilliant performers for the Freshman aggregation.

In a dual meet with Broadway High School on Denny Field, the first-year men proved victors, 67 to 45. The sailors from the Bremerton navy yard decided to tackle the University infants and were rudely awakened to the fact that the Freshman athletes were too good for them.

Although weak in several events, particularly the distances, the Freshman team compared well with the Varsity in many respects. With Hurley out-sprinting any Varsity contestant in the 100 and 220, Anderson and Hurley flashing over the hurdles in good form, Hathaway and Williams tearing around the quarter-mile oval in as good time as the Varsity 440 men, Shive startling the fans by his remarkable efforts in the high and broad jumps, and Bryan tossing the weights with the best of them, prospects for a winning track combination this year are exceptionally brilliant.

Numerals and jerseys were won by the following: "Vic" Hurley, sprint and hurdles; Casey Anderson, sprints and hurdles; "Johnny" Wilson, sprints; Ernest Hathaway, quarter-mile; Harold Williams, quarter and half mile; Darrell McDonald, half-mile; Roswell Peake, mile; "Jimmy" Bryan, weights; Ben Shive, jumps; Harold Sinclair, pole vault, and James Pratt, sprints.

Tennis

WASHINGTON was Stanford's only competitor in the Pacific Coast conference tennis tournament held at Palo Alto, May 14 and 15, when the Cardinal racquet-wielders took the Pacific Coast singles and doubles collegiate titles. This was the only meet in which the Purple and Gold tennis team competed last year, although tournaments had been scheduled with O. A. C. at Corvallis and Oregon at Seattle. The O. A. C. meet was billed for May 23 and 24 and the Oregon matches for May 9 and 10. Both tournaments were cancelled.

Before the Washington men met Stanford in the conference matches, they played the California net team in Berkley, where they won four and lost two of their matches.

The matches at Palo Alto were hotly contested, the honors for the first day's competition going to the Washington players. The Stanford racqueteers staged a come-back on the following day and won both the single and double championships. The results of the singles matches were as follows:

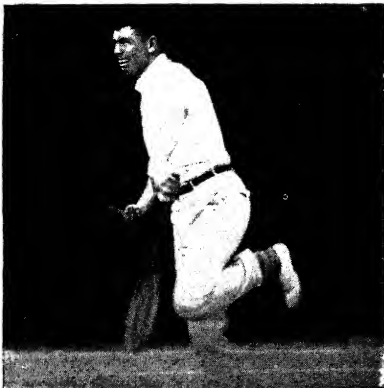

Neer won from Waller, 7-5, 6-4; Allen won from Fish, 6-4, 6-2; Taylor won from Turner, 7-5, 6-4; Davies won from Barker, 6-3, 6-2. In the second round Allen won from Neer, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2, and Davies won from Taylor by default. In the final games Davis, the Cardinal ace, won from Allen, of Washington, 8-6, 2-6, 4-6, thereby copping the Pacific Coast collegiate singles crown.

In the doubles matches Neer and Davies beat Waller and Barker, 6-4, 6-3, while Allen and Taylor beat Fish and Turner, 6-2, 7-5. Stanford cinched the doubles honors when Neer and Davies won from Allen and Taylor, 6-2, 6-3.

The Purple and Gold net team was assisted materially in preparing for the Stanford tournament by Carl Gardner, Roland Roberts, Johnny Strahan and William Johnston, players of national repute, who worked out with Washington on the Berkeley courts. This preliminary practice aided in getting the Washington men accustomed to asphalt courts, such as they were forced to play on at Palo Alto. The Washington team was developed on dirt courts and the paved courts worked a hardship on the Purple and Gold athletes when they tangled with the Southerners.

Individually the Washington team ranks high in tennis circles nationally as well as locally. Captain Don Waller and Stewart Barker are both letter men of former years and will be available this year when the racquets begin to swing. Barker is the captain-elect for the coming season. Both are players of exceptional ability and make an effective doubles combination.

Marshall Allen, who played his first year on the Washington team, held the Northwest junior title and represented the Northwest at Forest Hills in 1917. Allen is a heady, aggressive player with a mastery of strokes that keeps his opponent constantly on the defensive.

"Bill" Taylor is another new man to the Purple and Gold squad whose playing elicited favorable comment from the net fans. He plays a hard, fast game and deals up a consistently deceptive serve. He has figured prominently in Northwest tennis and is considered one of the best doubles men in the city. The Allen-Taylor combination is regarded as being probably the best doubles team that has ever represented the University of Washington.

INTERCLASS FOOTBALL—1920

INTERCLASS honors in football went to the Seniors, after they defeated the Sophomores, runners-up in the interclass championship race, on Denny Field. The game was hard fought and the individual playing of both elevens marked the contest. Spectacular runs by Cook, of the upperclassmen, and Brown, Sophomore, brought applause from the enthusiastic rooters.

INTERCLASS BASKETBALL

The Sophomores won the interclass basketball championship of the University by defeating the Juniors 35 to 16. The Sophomore team was practically composed of the super-varsity. In the semi-finals the Juniors won out over the Seniors 41 to 5, and the Sophomores defeated the Freshmen 28 to 5.

The men who composed the winning team were: Lowe, Norquist, Mapes, Mickelson, Baake, Savage, L. DeGroote, Smith.

INTERCLASS HOCKEY

The class hockey championship was won by the Juniors when they defeated the Seniors 2-0 in the match at the Arena, December 14.

The results of the series were as follows: Juniors, 3 games; Freshmen, tie and forfeit; Sophs, 1; Seniors, tie.

INTERCLASS WRESTLING

The Sophomores won the interclass wrestling championship of the University, winning in three of the five weights.

In the 125-pound division, L. M. Carter, Sophomore, obtained two falls over B. Taylor, Junior.

D. V. Caldwell, Sophomore, at 135, also defeated Gordon Pole, Junior, securing two falls.

K. Howe, Junior, at 158, won out against E. Strand, Sophomore, by the two-fall route.

Joe Crumb, Sophomore, in the deciding match at 175 pounds, against C. Potter, Junior, secured a fall and a decision. No men who had won wrestling letters were eligible to participate.

INTERCLASS BOXING

Honors in the interclass boxing tournament were won by the Sophomores, who took three of the six weights listed. Two Juniors finished at the top, while the Seniors and Frosh tied with one match each.

Probably the best bout of the meet was in the 125-pound class, between O. J. Moen and R. Amundson, both Sophomores. Moen won out after an extra round. The men displayed unusual skill for college boxers, both of them being fast on their feet and packing a stiff punch. This reversed the decision in the interfraternity meet.

D. K. E., Interfraternity Basketball Champions

One of the liveliest bouts was between W. Graham and L. Milliman at 115 pounds. They went after each other viciously, but Milliman was given the decision after an extra round. He displayed the more experience.

C. Johnson, Sophomore, won a decision over J. Berry, Frosh, in the 125-pound division. Johnson obtained the lead by his heavy punching, although Berry displayed clever footwork.

At 145 pounds, a preliminary bout was necessary as three men were entered. A. Paolick, Sophomore, won over J. Bigley, Frosh. In the finals Paolick lost to V. Aitken, Senior. Paolick was visibly weakened by his previous encounter, but gave good exhibition before the powerful blows of Aitken.

E. Hicker, Frosh, defeated P. Malloy, Sophomore, in the 158-pound preliminaries, but lost to Otto Bardarson, Junior, in the finals. There was plenty of action in both of these bouts.

Guy Stickney, Frosh, at 175 pounds, defeated A. Parent, Sophomore.

In the heavyweight class R. C. Youngquist, Sophomore, gained the decision over R. Thompson. Youngquist was given the decision on account of his aggressiveness.

INTERCLASS TRACK

The Juniors more than doubled on their nearest competitor in the interclass track meet held on Denny Field, June 4. The score was as follows: Juniors 69, Seniors 24, Sophomores 23, "Has Beens" 10½, Freshmen 9½. Ted Faulk created the sensation of the meet by hurling the discus 132 feet 6 inches. This was his first attempt at field events since leaving high school and the distance would have netted him third place in the Pacific Conference meet held at Palo Alto.

The interfraternity meet was held in conjunction with the interclass meet. The score was as follows: Sigma Chi 36, Independents 32. Phi Psi, Beta Theta Pi and Theta Chi tied for third place with a score of ten points each.

INTERCLASS CREW

The Junior class crew won the interclass races February 11, after nosing the Sophomores out of the lead in the last hundred yards. The Seniors finished third and the Freshmen fourth. The race was rowed over the one mile and a quarter course from Laurelhurst Point to the west end of the canal. The men who rowed in the winning shell were Hollenbeck, MacMillan, Skibness, Klingsmith, Moore, Cushman, Campbell and Magnuson. Grant was coxswain.

INTERFRATERNITY BASKETBALL—1920

The 1920 basketball pennant of the interfraternity league went to the D. K. E. five, which played consistent basketball throughout the series, never once being headed by their competitors. The final series was played off between the Dekes and the Theta Xi quintet. Both teams showed a speedy assortment of plays and fast teamwork. The shooting of Crawford and Savage, Deke aces, was too much for the Theta Xi men and the championship went to the blue-jerseyed D. K. E. five.

INTERFRATERNITY BASEBALL

Kappa Sigma won the interfraternity championship, June 4, by defeating D. K. E. 4-0. The semi-finals were played by the winners of the different leagues, and resulted in Kappa Sigma 8, Sigma Nu 7, and D. K. E. 11, Phi Deltas 3.

The fraternities were divided in the following leagues: American—Sigma Nu, Lambda Chi Alpha, Theta Chi, Sigma Chi, Gamma Sigma, Phi Kappa Psi; National league—D. K. E., A. T. O., Alpha Sigma Phi, Beta Theta Pi, Phi Kappa Sigma, Theta Delta Chi; Federal league—Phi Gamma Delta, Alpha Theta Epsilon, Kappa Sigma, S. A. E., Pi Kappa Alpha; Outlaw league—Delta Chi, Delta Tau Delta, Delta Upsilon, Phi Delta Theta, Acacia, Theta Xi.

FRATERNITY—INDEPENDENT CHAMPIONSHIP

By defeating the Hyaks 3-0 the Royals won the Independent championship. Due to the ineligibility of some of the players, the game with the fraternity champions was not held.

INTERCLASS BASEBALL

The Juniors defeated the Sophomores 9-3 in the final game for the championship. The semi-finals results were: Sophomores, 4, Seniors 2, Juniors 6, Freshmen 0.

INTERFRATERNITY WRESTLING

Pi Kappa Alpha won the interfraternity wrestling championship with a total of 19 points. Alpha Tau Omega was second with 18 and Alpha Sigma Phi secured 16 points.

In the 125-pound class, Louis Hogan, Beta, won a decision from Woodworth, Acacia. At 135, Esson Poole, A. T. O., took a fall from Gordon Pole, Sigma Chi. Noble McCredy, Pi Kap., won his bout from Caldwell, Kappa Sig., by a decision. In the light heavyweight, Bob Dickson, Theta Gamma Pi, won by a fall from C. P. Preppernau, Alpha Sig. At 175 pounds, Claude Potter, Theta Xi, won from Edwin McRae, Alpha Sig.

INTERFRATERNITY BOXING

Pi Kappa Alpha won the interfraternity boxing championship of the University with a score of 32 points. Phi Kappa Sigma was second with 25 points and Alpha Tau Omega third with 18 points.

In the 125-pound class, A. Amundson, Pi Kap, won from O. J. Moen, A. T. O., and from Langlie, Phi Kappa Sig. Both bouts went four rounds.

W. E. Millett, Pi Kap., at 135 pounds, was given the decision over S. Mullin, A. T. O., after two rounds of fast fighting. Both men showed clearly the lack of condition.

In the 145-pound division, Max Miller, S. A. E., gained the decision over C. P. Callison, Sigma Nu, and over F. M. Brown, Psi U. In the preliminaries Brown outpointed N. Hudson, A. T. O.

R. H. Schofield, Phi Kappa Sigma, 158 pounds, was awarded the decision over P. Malloy, Pi Kap. In the preliminary contest Schofield won from S. Brengem, A. T. O., after three rounds of fast fighting.

At 175 pounds, E. J. McRae, Alpha Sig., won his bout against A. J. Baumgartner, Phi Kappa Sigma.

INDEPENDENT—FRATERNITY MEET

The interfraternity boxing champions won over the Independent mittmen in the finals of the all-University tournament by winning in every weight except the 158-pound class.

M. Miller, S. A. E., at 145 pounds, displayed unusual ability in his bout against A. Paolick, Independent. Both men were willing to mix, but Miller was more aggressive and displayed good defense.

R. Amundson, Pi Kap., at 125, was given the decision near the end of the third round over L. H. Place, Independent. Amundson had a clear lead throughout the fight.

E. A. Sylvester, Independent, was awarded the 158-pound match when R. H. Schofield, Phi Kap., failed to appear.

In the heavyweight class E. T. McRea was given a close decision over G. C. Stickney, Independent. An extra round decided this match.

The winners on the 125, 135 and 145 pound classes were selected by Coach "Jimmy" Arbuthnot to represent the Varsity at the Multnomah Athletic Club match held in Portland, March 3.

Minor Sports

Hockey Squad

HOCKEY

THE introduction of ice hockey as a minor sport in the University resulted in the development of a team that received praise from many of the professional players of the Northwest league. The excellent start that the ice sport gained this year augurs well for the continuance of hockey at Washington.

When the Board of Control decided that hockey could not be financed, steps were taken by the University Canadian Club to promote a series of games with the University of British Columbia. Two games were played, the first going to a 3 to 3 tie and the second resulting in a 5 to 2 victory for the Canadians.

The Purple and Gold Varsity lined up as follows in the two games that constituted the season's schedule: Goal, Little; right defense, Jack McKenzie; left defense, "Toots" Bissett; rover, Don McKenzie; center, Louis Coupez; wings, Gordon Allen and Selwyn Bingham; subs, Ed McKenzie and Lewis. Many of the men were former amateur stars, including Don McKenzie, captain and rover, Louis Coupez, and Gordon Allen.

"Bobby" Rowe, Seattle professional, coached the University hockey enthusiasts this year. Practices were held in the Seattle Arena.

Plans for next year here include class series and intercollegiate games for the Varsity septet. With most of the members of this year's team eligible next season, it is expected that the Varsity squad will be stronger than ever.

BOXING

Boxing since its adoption as a minor sport, has received new impetus and, under the direction of Coach "Jimmy" Arbuthnot, has advanced to the position of a sport of first importance on the campus. More interest in boxing has been evidenced this year than in any year previous and more men have turned out for the sport.

The meet with the Multnomah Athletic Club in Portland resulted in a three-cornered victory for the web-footed athletes. Washington was represented by the following boxers, University champions in their respective weights: Max Miller, Harold Ward and Roy Amundson. Although all three lost their matches, each bout was hotly contested and the men mixed every minute. The tournament was held March 3 and was the first outside meet held since the institution of boxing as a minor sport.

RIFLE SHOOTING

Another minor sport recently acquired by the University of Washington is rifle shooting. Even prior to the elevation of the sport to the minor grade, interest had been exceptionally high in shooting, due to the construction of the indoor range in the Naval Armory Building. The University team has to date competed in eight matches sponsored by the National Intercollegiate Rifle Competition.

Outdoor practice on the Fort Lawton range has been in vogue since the weather has permitted. Considerable proficiency has been displayed by the Washington shots, according to the R. O. T. C. officials, who have been in charge of the contests. Washington scored 473 points out of a possible 500 points in its eighth match, which, although not the best record, is regarded as good considering the experience of the competitors. In this match the following scores were made: C. W. Styer, 96; E. Hicker and R. R. Smith, 95; C. Kepp, 94, and B. Foster, 93.

GOLF

With the opening of the improved links on the Lake Washington shore at the base of the campus, interest in golf at the University has been boosted remarkably. As yet no plans have been formulated for intercollegiate competition, due to the newness of golf as a minor sport, but it is expected that a University team will be chosen soon to represent Washington in local matches.

SWIMMING

Swimming is the fifth minor sport which was voted into the letter-winning class last year by the students of Washington. Because of lack of adequate facilities for practice and competition, there has not been perhaps as much interest shown in swimming as in some of the other sports. What active participation there has been in swimming among University students has been confined to the Y. M. C. A. and other pools. It is expected that the construction of a Union Building on the University campus will boost interest in swimming, as an adequate swimming pool will then be provided.

DON HEEHANS

Physical Education Department

Mrs. Anderson, Miss Lemon, Miss McKinnon, Miss Gross

THE Physical Education Department has become an important factor in the life of college women, offering as it does the advantages of varied recreation and healthy sportsmanship to every girl in the University. The maximum number registering in the classes is 1227 per quarter. Through the influence of Miss Mary E. Gross, head of the department, the curricula has been enlarged to include golf, archery, swimming, hiking, dance-drama, and recreational leadership courses.

The University of Washington is the only college offering golf for women. Under the instruction of J. W. Runchey, it has become one of the most popular sports. Eighty-four have registered in the swimming classes held in the Y. W. C. A. pool down town. Archery, instructed by Miss Mildred Lemon, became so popular that it was necessary to limit the registration to fifty.

Other classes are as large proportionally. Hockey turn-out in the fall reached 215. The tennis tournament, under the instruction of Mrs. Lou Anderson, had over 100 participants. Basketball, in the winter quarter, had such a large turn-out that Miss McKinnon divided the number into first, second and third team groups, in each class.

The greatest achievement of the W. A. A. this year was the establishment of a new point system as a basis for the awarding of regulation "W" sweaters and blankets. Under the new system, membership on major or minor first, second or third class teams, class grades and posture will all contribute to the seventy-five points necessary for a sweater. The old system limited the awarding of sweaters to those who made four numerals in at least two major sports.

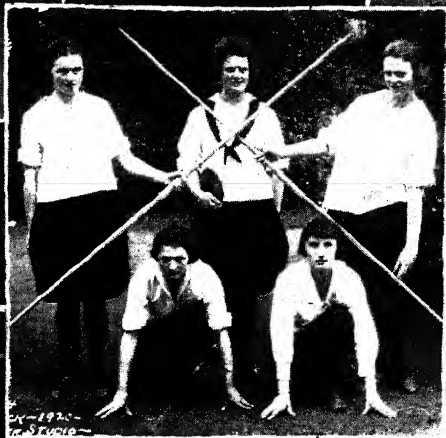

Northwest Athletic Conference

INCLUDING representatives from Stanford, California, O. A. C., W. S. C., and Oregon, the Northwest Conference held at Washington, May 28-29, 1920, accomplished steps never before taken in the interests of women's athletics in the Northwest. The two days were spent in enthusiastic discussion of collegiate athletic problems, and in entertainment.

The following program was carried out: Friday morning, business meeting; afternoon, 1:30, field day; 4 to 6 p. m., women's informal; Saturday morning, business meeting; afternoon, automobile ride through Seattle and suburbs; banquet at 6 p. m. The committee in charge was: Helen Morford, Marjorie Dammann, Lillie Stevenson, Kathryn Barnhisel.

BASEBALL

Baseball was the most important major sport of the spring quarter. Under the instruction of Mrs. Lou Anderson, class teams gained technical skill in all the arts of the diamond. Three teams were chosen for the 1920 season. The Juniors won the championship. The line-ups were:

Juniors—Pauline Horner, Zipora Blumenfeld, Janet Dewhurst, Rita Meyer, Violet Davies, Gretchen Brehm, Bodil Wiel, Dorothy Little, Ruah Farnsworth, Elizabeth Gunn, Irma Pelz, Ruth Weythman.

Sophomores—Vida Morrow, Elizabeth McColloch, Marion Wheaton, Carrie Pettijohn, Frieda Pelz, Jennie Niemela, Maxine Dodge, Alice Uddenburg, Miriam Craig, Ruth Oakes, Margaret Burpee, Leone Crouch.

Freshmen—Margaret Voyer, Lydia Elton, Hattie Fitzgerald, Dorothy Bailey, Elizabeth Richardson, Helen Herre, Josephine Vick, Martha Lindberg, Katherine Vaughn, Ruth McKinney, Marie Driscoll, Caroline Carlson.

Those named on the Varsity team were: Janet Dewhurst, Maxine Dodge, Vida Morrow, Marion Wheaton, Bodil Weil and Carrie Pettijohn.

Basketball, 1921

Sophs

The Sophomore class won the championship in women's basketball. Following is the line-up for the team: Elizabeth Richardson, Ethel Hilen, Muriel Ryerson, forwards; Hattie Fitzgerald, Elizabeth Parrington, Marian Hoskins, guards; Freda Portmann, Margaret Richardson, jumping centers; Ruth McKenney, Martha Cekada, side centers.

Juniors

Seniors

Frosh

VOLLEY BALL, 1921

VOLLEY ball started out in the winter quarter with the largest turn-out yet recorded. In the class games, Juniors and Sophomores tied for first place, with Seniors following second, and Freshmen third.

Class line-ups were:

Freshmen—Helen Reed, Geraldine Moore, Marguerit Glover, Dorothy Chisholme, Lena Puymbroeck, Julia Boone, Doreen Schinabarger, Dorothy Redenbaugh, Mabel Keinholz.

Sophomores—Lucile Wilson, Elizabeth Richardson, Constance Bolderston, Ruth Dix, Muriel Ryerson, Ethel Hilen, Freda Portmann, Marian Hoskins, Edda Brown, Hattie Fitzgerald.

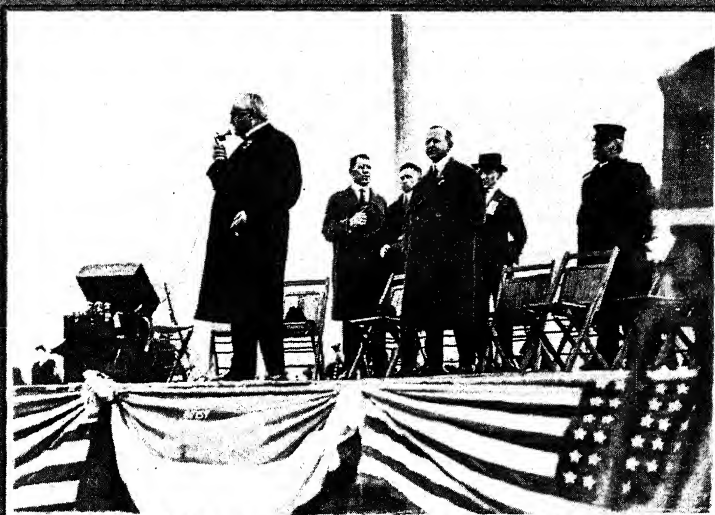

Juniors—Marie Knickrehm, Miriam Craig, Elizabeth McColloch, Leone Helmich, Marian Homan, Margaret Jenkins, Elfreda Pelz, Carrie Pettijohn, Ruth Oakes.

Seniors—Zipora Blumenfeld, Rita Meyer, Janet Dewhurst, Dorothy Little, Dorothy King, Netta Waite, Norma Littooy, Verna Wheeler, Ruth Finnicum.

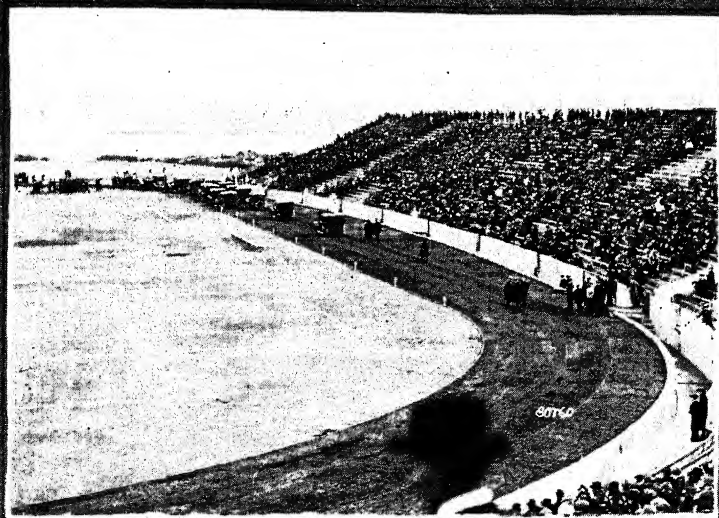

ARCHERY AND TENNIS

Tournaments were held in both archery and tennis this spring. Because of the novelty of archery, more aspirants turned out than could be handled. Elizabeth Gunn, Janet Dewhurst, and Frances Mulhern were chosen archery stars on the basis of form and scoring. The tennis tournament was won by Rita Meyer.

Review Of Dramatic Season

Stage Scene in "Prunella"

CHANGE, progress and expansion—change in organization and personnel and the gradual transition of one of the dramatic clubs from an organization embracing all the theatrical arts to one confining itself to drama and the presentation of drama; progress in the art of acting, scenery designing and in the choice of worth-while plays; expansion in production, the introduction of courses in play-writing, in play-acting and play-producing and the cultivation of histrionic ability through the Women's League clubs—these have been the dominant factors in the success of the 1920-1921 dramatic season of the University of Washington.

The plays were worthy of the institution, both in themselves and in their presentation. Their direction was commendable. The Vodvil was unexcelled. Plays produced by the department of dramatic art were introduced. A movement to get a more adequate place for dramatic productions, whether in a union building, a fine arts building, or in a little theatre building, was inaugurated. Yes, the 1920-1921 dramatic season was a success.

“Prunella,” An Achievement

QUITE the most artistic production given by University of Washington talent in recent years was “Prunella,” a three-act fantasy by Laurence Housman and Granville Barker, presented by Mask and Quill in Meany Hall, November 12, as the opening number of the season’s dramatic activity.

“Prunella”, or “Love In a Dutch Garden”. is a pretty, old-fashioned tale, charged with an essentially modern spirit and embellished with much quaint humor and sentiment. It is written in rhyme, played partly in pantomime, and accompanied by a running commentary of delightful, interpretative music.

The action transpires in an old-fashioned Dutch garden. The setting made for the play by the Mask and Quill artists was simple and conventional, yet charming. The symphony of lighting effects obtained by the staff of electricians was nothing short of ingenious. Artistic staging of its own plays, as well as the designing and making of scenery for plays acted by other clubs and for the spring opera, is a distinctive achievement of Mask and Quill.

Prunella is an orphan who has grown up without any knowledge of the world under the guidance of three maiden aunts. She leads an uneventful life of study and play until one day a troupe of traveling actors come to the town and even into the garden of Prunella’s home. Pierrot, the leader of the troupe, is attracted to Prunella and induces her to elope with him. After a time Pierrot tires of Prunella and leaves her. But, to his surprise, he finds life empty without her. For a year he searches for her and eventually returns and purchases her old home from the one surviving aunt. His weary players return with him to the dilapidated house and are in the midst of a revel when Prunella, pale, weary and unrecognized, returns to the garden. At last Pierrot sees that the girl is Prunella. He thinks at first it is an apparition, then is overjoyed to find it really Prunella. They pledge each other unending fidelity.

An old, old story, but charmingly quaint and pleasing. It leaves a sweet echo of singing in the mind.

As produced by Mask and Quill, “Prunella” was distinctly unprofessional, which is as it should be. Its presentation was so fresh, so sprightly, so genuine, that a new mark for dramatic achievement at the University of Washington was set by its performance. Such is the opinion of every recognized critic who saw it.

Glenn Hughes, who acted as supervising director, contributed an invaluable service to Mask and Quill in the artistic production of this play.

MERRILL SCORES AS PIERROT

Grant Merrill gave to the role of Pierrot such grace and so well invested his lines with the imagery one can believe they were intended to convey, that "Prunella" was on November 12 a man's play, not a woman's. His work was easily the best part of the production.

As Prunella, Laverne Young was in the first two acts just the sweet, curious, credulous little girl everyone wanted her to be. She handled the role in a natural, whole-hearted manner. The fact that she seemed at times ineffective in parts of the last act was compensated for by the delightful way in which she and Merrill enacted the reconciliation scene at the close.

Walter Burroughs, as the Boy who reappears from time to time and "wants to see life", displayed a decided aptitude for this broad comedy characterization. John Hutchings, as Pierrot's servant, Scaramel, was splendid as a foil for his master's poetic inclinations and as an accomplice in his undertakings.

"Prunella" Cast

Forrest Carter, Norris Miles and Stanley Orne, as gardeners, gave the background of the play in the opening scene, which was handled in an entertaining manner. Once warmed up to it, Julia Ripley, Rhea Billings, and especially Constance Coe, proved successful in their interpretations of the roles of the three maiden aunts. Frances Lamborn showed considerable ability in a small part as Quaint, a servant. Ruth Hubbell did well in her appearance as Queer, another servant.

The antics of the mummery, Pierrot's troupe of players, gave sprightliness and gayety to the production. They were played by Orrin Vining, Fred Ranning, Frank Spencer, Clifford Newdall, Eilene Howell, Julia Ripley, Janet Stranack, Ruth Bamford and Kathleen Backus. Olin Lewis was more than entertaining in his singing as Tenor, who Pierrot employs to serenade Prunella.

STAGING A FEATURE OF THE PLAY

An account of Mask and Quill's "Prunella" would be incomplete without complimenting the splendid work of those behind the scenes. John Ely, Vernita Swezea, Mary Larrabee, Frank Harschberger and Alice Frein designed and painted the setting. The scenery and lighting effects were expertly handled by Frederic Keator, James Pratt, Cyril Shaw, Francis Griswold and Anderson Joy. Edward Butt, Robert Carey and Graham French played the musical score in a delightful manner, which added greatly to the pleasure of the evening.

Mask and Quill should be congratulated on its courage for attempting a play like "Prunella" and for its excellent presentation and performance.

Department Play

As the first production of the department of dramatic art, with the obvious advantage of regular, required rehearsals and with a play so good that only absolute incompetents could fail to get it over the footlights, more, possibly, was expected than should have been from "The Importance of Being Earnest", which was given at the city Y. W. C. A. auditorium December 10 and 11.

This Oscar Wilde play, which its author dubbed "a trivial comedy for serious people", abounds in laughter-compelling repartee. Its humor arises from the utter seriousness of the persons in it. Not a single laugh, unless one or two of a sneering nature, comes from the stage. Obviously, any attempt by the players to be comic hinders rather than helps its entertainment possibilities.

The action is based on a peculiar situation arising because the name "Earnest" is connected with two friends, each in love with girls who admire this name. John Worthing becomes "Earnest" Worthing in the mind of his intended and Algernon Moncrieff, without Worthing's knowledge, poses to Worthing's niece, Cecily Cardew, as "Earnest" Worthing. Eventually the two bluffers are called and, after explanations are exchanged, three happy unions are in prospect when the play closes.

Wilhelmina Crawford played Cecily Cardew in a natural, unassuming way that won generous approval from the audience at both performances. That Miss Crawford in her first play at the University of Washington was the best part of that play is indisputable.

If Harold McClinton had appeared to be a little less indifferent, his characterization of John Worthing would have been improved.

Grant Merrill was acceptable as Algernon Moncrieff and gave to the role a touch of distinction.

Marie Broulette made an admirable Lady Bracknell. Because of very obvious overacting, Jean McMorran did not approach her usual standard in the role of Gwendoline Fairfax. Clifford Newdall as the Rev. Canon Chasuble was also guilty of overacting. He would have been much more genuinely funny had he refrained from being clownish.

Herndon Smith pleased in the role of Miss Prism. Donald Harris and Gordon Graham were adequate in small parts. Elma Dick, Louise Benton and Joy Fisher furnished music to complete the entertainment.

Glenn Hughes produced the play, but it was not comparable to other Hughes productions. However, cramped conditions backstage and the smallness of the permanent set will excuse many faulty phases of the presentation. Viewed in perspective, there was in this premier production of the department of dramatic art much to promise good things for the future.

Vodvil Well Received

A large audience expressed its hearty approval of the Junior Girls' Vodvil given in Meany Hall January 29. That the performance this year was equal to any of its predecessors is generally conceded. Many of the acts were splendid, not only for their novelty and originality, but also for the distinctly professional manner in which they were presented. In fact, the entire bill possessed a tang of professionalism.

Marie Broulette, general chairman, and Doreen Kennedy, assistant, deserve an abundance of credit for this excellent show. Their weeks of hard work were well spent. The large orchestra under the direction of Clifford Newdall was one of the best parts of the performance. Each act was introduced and accompanied by the musicians, who handled their work as if they had done it every day of their lives.

"Busy Lines" was a telephonic farce in which Margery Gilbert was a central operator and Susan Erwin and Jane Johnson were co-eds trying to converse with each other. Many allusions to well-known students kept the audience laughing. Miss Gilbert displayed considerable ability in the portrayal of the flippant 'phone girl.

Constance Phillips' dancing as the French clock was the feature of "The Clock Shop", a fantasy produced by gymnasium major women. The scenery, which was half the entertainment in this act, was designed by Vernita Swezea. The pantomime was interesting.

Red Domino, women's honorary dramatic society, presented "Suppressed Desires", a farce of domestic troubles based on too much psychology, with Evelyn Owen, Jean McMorran and Harold McClinton. Miss Owen played the perplexed Mabel in an admirably natural manner. Miss McMorran seemed to be well-suited to the role of the agitated wife and McClinton was quite himself as Stephen.

A song, dance and piano skit by Nadine Bolander, Abbott Lindsey and James Mischler was received with enthusiasm. Grant Merrill and Margaret Neff presented "The Evolution of the Dance", performing every step from the old-fashioned waltz to the camel walk with remarkable ease and grace.

Clock Dance

Clayton Bolinger, Russell Ferguson and Mac Brown displayed some very clever tumbling in their curtain raiser. All dressed up in clown suits and blackface, the saxophone trio, composed of Earl Martin, Walter Hawkins and Robert Carey, was recalled several times.

Excellent work backstage was evident throughout the performance. Only a moment or two elapsed between acts. The lighting effects were commendable.

"Cousin Kate" Well Presented

The Dramatic Association furnished the chief dramatic attraction of the winter quarter, aside from the Vodvil, when it produced "Cousin Kate" in Meany Hall on February 18.

This play is a modern comedy by Hubert H. Davis, a vehicle in which Ethel Barrymore starred several seasons ago. It strikes a pleasing medium between heavy drama and farce.

Cousin Kate Curtis is a genial young Londoner who writes novels and thinks she is a very love-hardened type of the "new woman". On her way to the country, to help make arrangements for Amy Spencer's wedding, she meets a young man traveling in the same railway carriage with her. They share her lunch, but although they leave the train at the same station, they part, ostensibly never to meet again.

Cast of "Cousin Kate"

Amy and Dr. Bartlett

EVELYN ATKINSON FEATURED

The presentation of the play had possibilities which seemed particularly adapted to Evelyn Atkinson. Her characterization of Cousin Kate demonstrated her ability both in comedy work, which was delightful and sure for the most part, and in her colloquies of more serious nature.

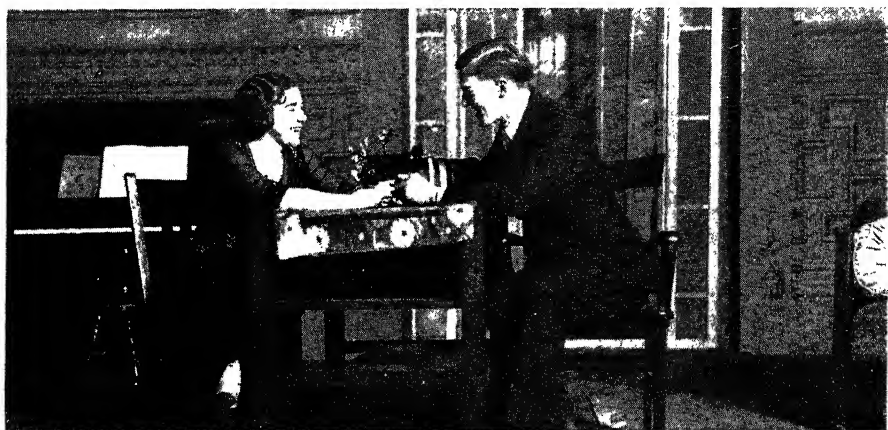

Harold McLinton assumed the role of Heath Desmond, an audacious young Irish artist, of much spirit and gusto, and interpreted the part in an enjoyable manner. His lines were replete with opportunities for originality and versatility, many of which he capitalized to the satisfaction of an appreciative audience.

Sara Buchanan, a new member of the Association, handled the role of Amy Spencer, a colorless, stilted and unobtrusive girl, in a pleasing way. Helen Archer, as Amy's widowed mother, had an exacting role. Her soaring ambitions for her daughter's marital future contributed effectively to the atmosphere of the play.

Joseph Greenleafe, as Bobby Spencer, the exuberant young son, shone brightly in his work and was admirably suited to the character. Harold Mann should be given much credit for his character work in the role of the priggish Rev. James Bartlett.

An admirable ensemble was completed by Margery Gilbert, who was seen in the part of Jane, a maid. She took advantage of every opportunity to exercise her skill in character and dialectical acting.

The University of Washington orchestra played for the production.

Cousin Kate and Heath

There is consternation in the Spencer home. Amy's fiance, Heath Desmond, because of a little quarrel has deserted her a few days before the wedding. The presents are arriving and the whole countryside is aware of the impending ceremony.

Cousin Kate arrives and her generous nature aches to rectify matters. But she finds herself unable to solve the dilemma. Her thoughts constantly revert to the young man she left at the station.

In the meantime, Doctor Bartlett, a young clergyman, has proposed to Amy, telling her that she need not feel humiliated because Heath has absconded. But Amy, hoping for Heath's return, has refused him.

Kate goes for a walk to Owlscot, the home in which Amy and Heath were to have lived. Here she unexpectedly encounters the young man whom she could not forget. After tea together the inevitable happens—they tell each other of their mutual love. At this juncture, Amy appears in search of Kate and innocently discloses Heath's identity.

Kate, heart-broken, leaves with Amy, but resolves to keep her sorrow to herself and to reconcile Heath and Amy.

But by some clever maneuvering Heath makes Amy feel that she is really more fitted to be Bartlett's wife than his own, throws the two together and leaves himself free for Kate.

The play unfolds itself uninterruptedly and, together with effective scenery, was a credit both to the cast and to Glenn Hughes, the director.

League Does Good Work

To promote keener appreciation of better drama and to foster community interest in dramatic productions, a dozen clubs of women interested in acting were formed by the Women's League last year. The number of clubs was reduced to five this year, finding that better work could be done by concentrating the activity on a few. Laverne Young has been the leader of the clubs this year.

Each club gives two plays in the college year, one of which is kept in readiness to give on short notice. One-act plays are usually used. A tea is given monthly by the five clubs and persons connected with the theatre in a professional way are engaged to talk to the members.

This spring closes a very successful season for the clubs. Among the plays which have been given are, "Mrs. Pat and the Law", "Engaging Janet", "In Search of a Servant", "The Dolls", which was given jointly as a Christmas play, and "Naughtiness Personified", an original play by Otis Richardson, a senior in Liberal Arts.

Harriet Doheny is chairman of Thalian and Donna Everett is secretary. Mrs. Hazel Teall and Vera Allen hold corresponding offices in Amard. Evelyn Atkinson is chairman of Mantell, Vera Boyer secretary. La Actriz has Eilene Howell as its chairman and Margaret Shotwell as secretary. Edith Stephenson is chairman of Wigs and Cue.

What will eventually come of the work of these clubs is one of the most interesting of dramatic possibilities on the campus.

Red Domino Is Active

The presentation of a group of one-act plays by Red Domino, women's honorary dramatic fraternity, will probably become an annual event. With the assistance of men, members of other dramatic clubs, Red Domino produced a group of three in the city Y. W. C. A. auditorium in the spring of 1920, one of them "Pierrot's Mother", an original play by Glenn Hughes.

Work Of Council Is Progressive

The centralization of the dramatic work of the campus under the government of one body is the work of the Central Dramatic Council, which is composed of representatives from the dramatic clubs, from the dramatic art faculty, from the College of Fine Arts, the dean of the Fine Arts College and the dean of women.

All the properties and scenery made for campus productions become the property of the Council, which rents them back when they are again used. A system under which all the property of the Council will be indexed and a rental charge fixed for each article is being developed.

A committee of the Council is now working on the possibilities of obtaining a new auditorium for campus productions.

Stuart Barker is president of the Council this year and Jean McMorran secretary-treasurer. Frederic Keator is stage manager and Francis Griswold property man.

Play-Acting Course Begun

The introduction of courses in play-acting, play-producing and play-writing in the department of dramatic art is a forward step made this year. It has stimulated not only the interest of students not ordinarily interested in dramatics, but it has discovered for the campus unusual dramatic ability in men and women who have not previously appeared in dramatics here.

One public performance was to be given by the department during each quarter, according to the announcement of the play-acting and play-producing course. "The Importance of Being Earnest", staged in the fall quarter, was the first production of the department. No play could be given in the winter quarter.

In Passing

Glenn Hughes has in a quiet way achieved some very admirable work in his two years at the University of Washington. He has directed some extremely creditable plays, organized classes in play-acting, play-producing and play-writing, published an interesting book of verse and has acted as a member of the editorial board of The Pacific Review. A remarkable record—one little appreciated except by those intimately connected with his work.

When Frederic Keator is graduated in June, an excellent worker for campus theatricals will be lost to the University. Keator has acted as electrician and stage manager for Dramatic Association plays, Mask and Quill plays, Junior Girls' Vodyils, County Fairs and Women's League assemblies since 1915. In 1920 he was both manager and stage manager of the spring opera. He has been a member of Central Dramatic Council for three years, was a charter member of Mask and Quill chapter of A. U. P. and is a member of Iota Tau Alpha.

An original play, by Otis Richardson, the first to be produced on the campus in several years, was played during the winter by La Actriz dramatic club of Women's League. "Naughtiness Personified" was its title.

College Night 1921 was a distinct success. The choice of May Robson in "Nobody's Fool" for the event was fortunate. Miss Robson entered into the spirit of the occasion and her gracious personality won the hearts of the college audience. A tea was given for her later in the week by Mask and Quill.

Review Of Musical Season

THE Music Department of the College of Fine Arts has offered many and varied programs this year, presenting to the public pupils of unusual talent and ability. The Glee Club in their annual trip won praise and were received by large audiences wherever they were scheduled to perform. "Waitin' for the Moon to Shine", with an incidental solo by Don Macfarlane was a popular number. Harold McClinton and Ansel Eckman in a vaudeville offering, and the Glee Club Band, scored "best ever" press notices.

Stabat Mater presented at the Annual Mid-Winter Concert was handled by such able artists as Dean Irving M. Glen, Mrs. Jane Burns Albert, Miss Katherine Peterson, Mr. Milford Kingsbury, Miss Jean McMorran, Miss Marion Wheaton and Mr. Donald Macfarlane. An enthusiastic turnout of students and town people showed keen interest and approval of this master work.

Women's Ensemble, assisted by Mildred Hogan, soprano, Laverne Young, soprano, Lois Wiley, contralto, and a string quartet including William Verran, Francis McKay, George McKay and David Burnham, gave a musicale at Meany Hall, Sunday, March 13. This string quartet has assisted in other programs during the year. Another group, composed of Joy Fisher, cello, Helen Harman, violin, and Mary Louise Weeks, piano, has appeared on many University programs.

The largest offering of the year, the Spring Opera, brings to attention all the musical branches in the department. The "Chorus" that Dean Glen directs and drills all the preceding quarter has an opportunity to display itself. The opera is accompanied by the University Orchestra and the leading parts are given to vocal and dramatic pupils.

Though the University Band does not give a concert of its own, no important assembly is complete without it. These musicians are on hand, too, for military drills and revues.

A string orchestra has been organized this spring and will include both men and women.

Spring Opera

A SATIRICAL farce, dealing with court life in one of the smaller principalities of Europe before the war, is the theme of Victor Herbert's "Enchantress", the opera presented by musicians of the University this year, under the direction of Irving M. Glen, dean of fine arts.

Prince Ivan, of Zergovia, must choose a bride. According to the laws of the land she must be a princess of royal birth. Whereupon he promptly falls in love with Vivian Savory, an opera singer. Millock, Regent of Zergovia, and Ozir, Minister of War, while they openly protest this arrangement, are secretly glad for Ozir desires to dethrone the Prince and rule the kingdom of Zergovia himself.

Seven princesses of assorted sizes and styles follow Prince Ivan around attempting to attract him. Troute, head of the Secret Service, shadows everybody, offering the definite information that he will "baffle them yet." Marion Love, an American heiress, causes the princesses no little consternation when they think she, too, is after the Prince. And Moumoute, Vivian's aunt, openly attempts to secure a wealthy husband for her niece.

In spite of these interruptions and complications however, Vivian and the Prince remain in love, and just as the Prince is about to give up his throne, country and people to marry Vivian, Troute does "baffle them" by discovering that Vivian is a royal Princess, too.

The cast for the opera was unusually well selected. The dances, a feature of the performance, were planned and directed by Miss Mildred Lemon.

Debate

THE debate season at Washington, with Karl E. Leib as coach and James Bailey as manager, has been of more than usual interest to the student body, no doubt because of the big Princeton debate which started the year. All three of the Washington men who debated against Princeton were Varsity men, and were skillful in handling the question. Princeton had won three of out six debates, up to the time of its debate with Washington, but Washington was the only team that was given a unanimous decision against the Easterners. The largest crowd ever present at a University debate in Seattle attended the Princeton debate.

The women have had only one debate, a dual debate with Whitman College. Two more are being planned for later in the year, one with California, in Seattle, and one in Oregon, with either O. A. C. or the University of Oregon.

Interclub debates have been numerous, including questions such as Philippine independence, strikes and lockouts, and the Jones Merchant Marine bill. Badger Debating Club has been perhaps the most successful, winning 3 to 0 from Sacajawea, 2 to 1 from Whatcom High School, Bellingham, and 3 to 0 from Athena Debate Club.

Varsity Debate

PRINCETON DEBATE

Washington 3

Princeton 0

Princeton came to the University of Washington to debate on January 3, but lost because her debaters failed to sufficiently answer the questions of the negative on the question, "Resolved, That Congress should pass laws prohibiting strikes in essential industries, constitutionality granted." Washington declared that it was incumbent for the affirmative to show the need of such laws, that such laws would be adequate for the need, and that such laws can be enforced. The Washington debaters included Hamlet Dodd, Kai Jensen and Kenneth Cole.

UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA—DUAL DEBATE

Washington affirmative 2

U. of B. C. 1

Washington negative 2

U. of B. C. 1

Washington won a 2 to 1 score in both debates with the University of British Columbia, January 21, on the question, "Resolved, That the Anglo-Japanese Alliance is a menace to the future of British-American relations." The affirmative Washington team was composed of Kline Hillman, Julian Matthews and Mark Abelset, alternate. Harold Raines, Edward Blaine and Samuel Mullin, alternate, made up the negative team.

WHITMAN COLLEGE DUAL DEBATE

Washington affirmative 1 Whitman 2

Washington negative 1 Whitman 2

The Varsity lost in both debates with Whitman College on the question, "Resolved, That immigration from Southeastern Europe should be prohibited." The affirmative team, made up of Stephen Haynes and Edward Blaine, debated in Meany Hall, February 25. The negative team at Whitman was composed of Julian Matthews and Hamlet Dodd.

TRI-STATE DEBATE

Washington 0 Stanford 3

Washington 1 Oregon 2

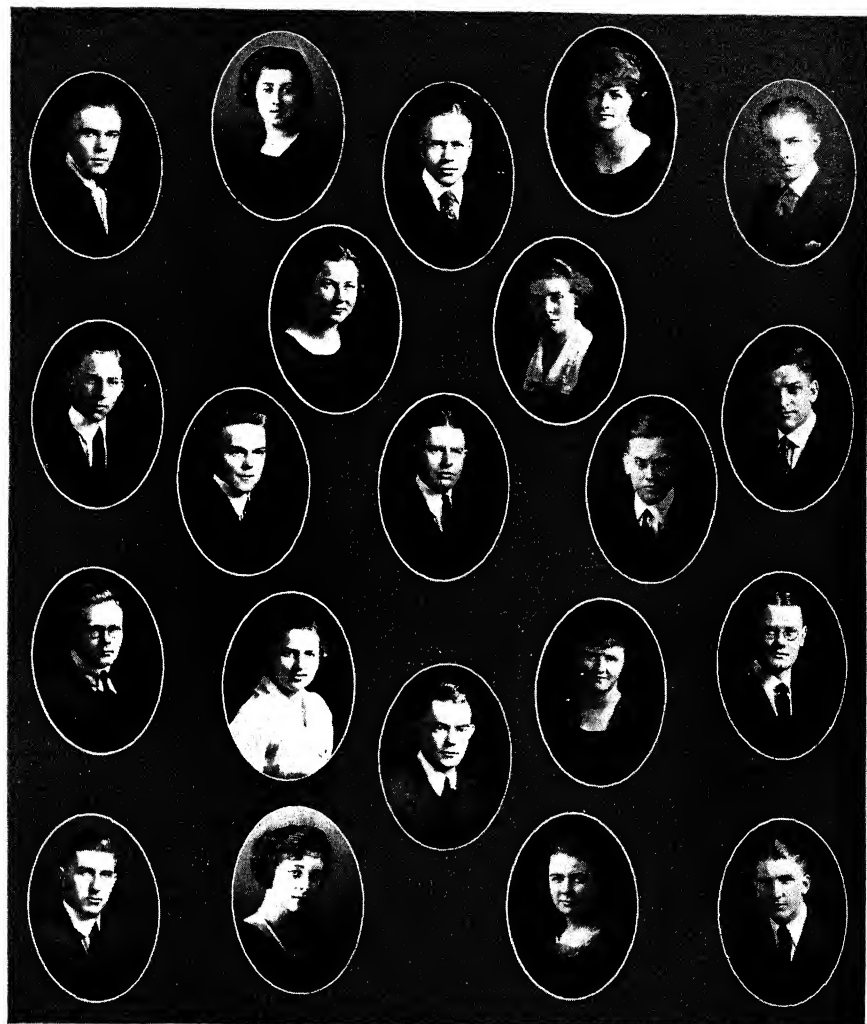

"Resolved, That Congress should pass laws prohibiting strikes in essential industries, constitutionality granted," was the question for debate with Stanford and Oregon, March 4. The Washington team that went to Stanford included James Bailey and Robert Macfarlane. Eugene Ivy and Ernest Hover debated against Oregon at Seattle.

WOMEN'S DUAL DEBATE WITH WHITMAN

Washington affirmative 2 Whitman 1

Washington negative 1 Whitman 2

The Women's Varsity won one debate and lost the other on the question, "Resolved, That as a prerequisite to strikes and lockouts, employers and employees should be compelled to submit their disputes to boards of arbitration, constitutionality granted." The affirmative team included Irene Burns and Margaretta Stuart, while Ruth Holland and Margaret Grimes upheld the negative.

TWO new publications found their home on the University campus during the year 1920-21. The Columns, a monthly magazine, published under the auspices of the local chapter of Sigma Upsilon, affords a medium for the discussion of campus problems and an open forum for student opinion. It proposes to breathe the spirit and forward outlook of the new University—the University that has arisen in the last few years with the increase in enrollment and the construction of new buildings; to emphasize the ideals of good taste and good sense in college activities, so advertising the better aspirations of student life and thought; and to encourage original writing among students interested in that sort of work.

The Pacific Review, too, has become firmly established in the year 1920-21. It is a national magazine, published by the University of Washington press, the editors at present being selected from the Washington faculty. The articles deal with general subjects, literary, economic, political and social, with an emphasis on the problems of the Pacific world. The latter is sufficient to give the Review a distinctive field, but does not restrict it to a merely local appeal.

Washington's Daily has been continuing the good work of previous years, as a representative campus newspaper. Approximately one hundred students have worked on the publication during the last three quarters. Besides the practical experience which is provided by work on the Daily and the gold fob and certificates which are awarded for commendable work, the "Daily gang" spirit attracts and holds a great many who enter Journalism Hall.

The comic magazine, Sun Dodger, is published monthly by Hammer and Coffin, national comic publishing society, and is a reflection of collegiate humor. Sun Dodger's "American Magazine," published in February, was the first nationally known magazine to be burlesqued by a college comic on the Pacific Coast.

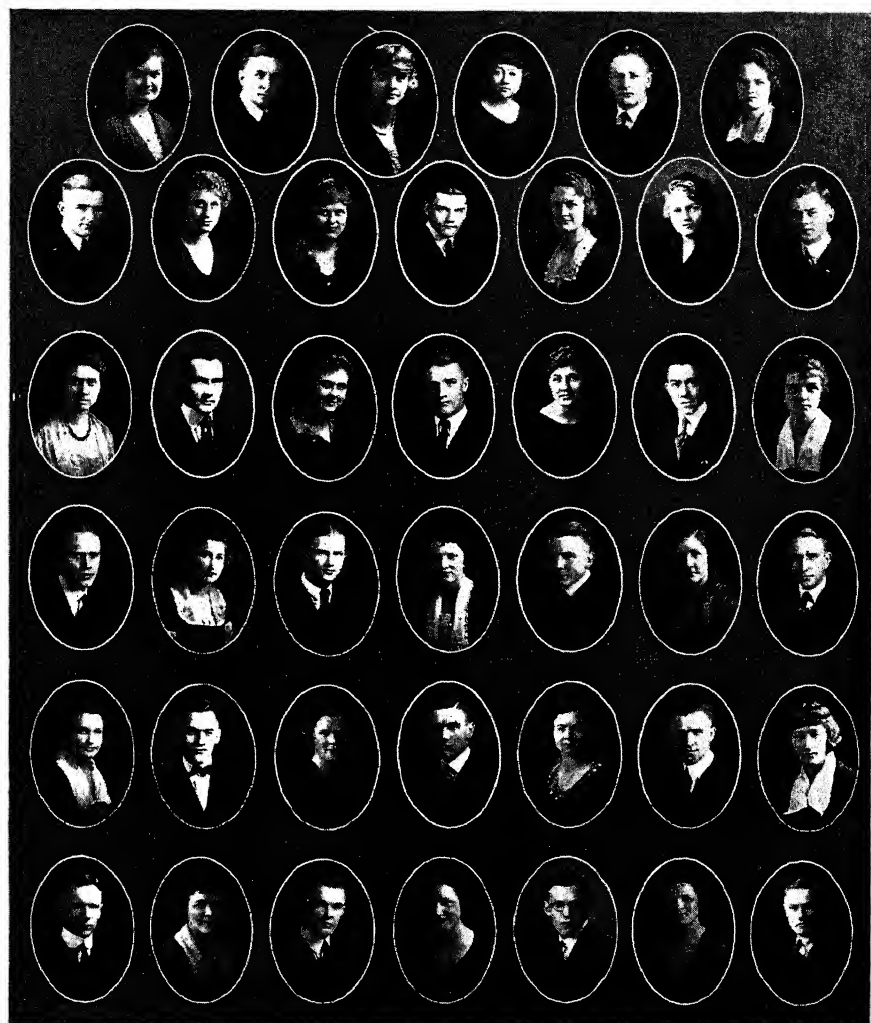

The Tyee, Washington's annual memory book since 1900, is edited and published as an incentive to a broader University life and a reminder of happy college days.

The Forest Club Annual is edited by the College of Forestry. It enables the men in that work to get in touch with the public and the industry, copies of the magazine being sent to all logging camps, lumber companies and manufacturers of logging and mill machinery in America and Europe. It is published in the spring of every year and is a magazine of practically one hundred pages.

Social Season

SOCIAL life at the University has returned to normal this year. that is, to a condition more like the "years before the war." The social calendar has not been too overcrowded and while there have been fewer parties, those given have been notably successful.

The Varsity Ball started the social season with a true "Snow Party," and perhaps the Hippodrome never looked so beautiful as it did on this occasion with the cold atmosphere of winter reflected in its mirrors.

According to custom the Freshman Frolic came the following night in the Gymnasium. It was attended by nearly five hundred couples.

The Sophomores departed from tradition this year and changed their Glee to a "Bolsheviki Ball." The Gymnasium was a den of socialism with brilliant scarlet streamers hanging from the ceiling. Their programs were clever little black bombs, with a regular "disorder of dances."

Oval Club gave one big informal and three two-bit dances, besides one benefit dance. Tolo Club gave its annual informal at the R. O. T. C. Armory, January 22. Knights of the Hook and the Engineers both entertained at the R. O. T. C. Armory with all-University dances.

The Juniors gave up the Jinx and combined with the Knights of the Hook for the Junior-Knight Carnival. The proceeds were used to start a fund for permanent swimming and diving apparatus for the University.

Headed by Herbert Little, the A. S. U. W. social committee made A. S. U. W. parties popular. These parties were invitational and held at different halls and houses during the year. In the whole season it was planned to have every student invited to one party. On nights when these parties were given there were several to accommodate the great number invited. The experiment proved so successful that the idea will be continued next year.

The Juniors carried the idea of last year's Oriental Prom into a Mandarin Ball, and the Masonic Temple resembled a Chinese temple on February 5.

Varsity Ball

HIPPODROME, DECEMBER 3

THE Varsity Ball this year was a veritable ice palace. The Hippodrome ballroom reflected icicles upon icicles in its pier glass mirrors; an aura of northern lights flashed from all parts of the room. The ceiling was hung with snowy cluster globes, each of which was an aurora borealis itself. An ice-block screen partly concealed the orchestra and even more color was lent to the atmosphere by the tiny white igloos that edged the floor. The programs pictured an eskimo sitting before his frozen igloo. The Freshman girls who served ice wore white and ermine skating costumes.

For the first time since 1916 the Varsity Ball was held in the Hippodrome and for the first time since the war it resembled the more elaborate and formal balls of pre-war days.

During the intermission a new custom was started with the announcement of Oval and Quad pledges.

Another innovation of the "snow-palace" ball was the election of a Snow Queen as the most representative Washington girl. Vernita Swezea, chairman of the Banner Girls, won the ballot and was crowned queen during the intermission.

Quantities of confetti, distributed by the Freshman girls, gave the appearance of a snow storm during the latter part of the dance.

MASONIC TEMPLE, FEBRUARY 5

THIS year the Junior Prom was a "Mandarin Ball." The Masonic was transformed into a magnificent Chinese temple. Gorgeous oriental hangings were draped over the balcony—rare pieces fantastically designed in great dragons. The stage had for a background a large oriental rug. Two massive Chinese mandarins guarded each end, while incense urns gave a pungent oriental fragrance to the air.

The programs for the dance were queer little mandarins. Small ivory paper knives were given to the guests as favors. Even the girls who served ice for the Prom were dressed in quaint Chinese costume.

THE Tillicums is an organization for all the independent men of the University. Its purpose is to foster and develop a spirit of fellowship among the unaffiliated men; to provide for them, through the extension of intra-mural athletics and the democratization of social life, an opportunity for full participation in all student activities.

The name Tillicums, which is the Indian word for friends, is especially significant, in that it is friendship that is the real basis of college life. The Tillicums also serve as a means of binding together more closely the alumni with the independents, a most necessary step toward building up a better Washington.

PUNNY HURTS

Pun Gouger Chapter of Arm and Hammer wish to announce that William Randolph Hurts has purchased the Pun Gouger and is bringing his entire staff out from Mattewan to conduct the publication.

Hurts and Punny

This is the first issue under the new management and Punny assures the reading public that Mr. Hurts and his fellow graftsmen will spare no effort in making the publication the equal in every respect of the Freeport Methodist Bulletin.

PUNNY OBJECTS

Anyone who thinks that Punny and the rest of the students are billboards is all wrong. Ask Foster and Kleiser. If they're so anxious to stick a little plaster on us, why don't they tag us with theatre tickets or Hip passes and see if we care.

TEN STRIKE

There's a lot going on on this campus lately that Punny doesn't like, and he's going to get mad and throw his golf club or croquet mallet at someone, some day, somewhere.

Have a care, Punny comes right back. The worm turns or gets scrunched. Well, it takes a Kaiser to scrunch Punny. Fellow battlers, strike for your matches!

This is the reform number. Punny has the Messianic delusion. He wants to reform. He is conducting a chautauqua in the interest of the law school. About cosmetics. Once again Punny holds up the right hand of good fellowship and points the finger of scorn. The gal's complexions are going to the dogs. And their hair is withering under the irony of the marcelle. Wo, ah wo, unto the next generation of Mexican cheris.

SIRIUS VEARSE

Did you ever dance on a ball-room floor, when the others were shimmy-
ing swell,
and hark to an innate whisper that
"you, too, might as well?"
Have you slid on the wax that the shoe leather burns with its fiery breath,
in its wild, tantalizing, shimmering,
loom-like dance of death?

For the ball room resembles a woman

In its power and in its spell;
And—like a woman—the ball room
Breaks, yet attracts men as well.

Spring Palpitation

If the R. O. T. C. had their way

"This lets me out," said the Frosh,
as he read the note from the Recorder.

"This is a horse on me," said the movie hero as his dromedary and he fell during a thrilling battle scene.

"She loves me knot," said Rastus, observing that his chicklet dropped
goo-goo eyes on his new chiffon tie.

HIS NAME'S PATIENCE

Goggles—"What's aching you, you're so nervous?"

The Dog—"Waiting for the flea to bite."

THE ROLLED SOX POEM

She said she didn't roll 'em;
I knew darned well she did—
Because I saw her practicing for the May Fete.

PUN GOUGER

Irish Home Rule

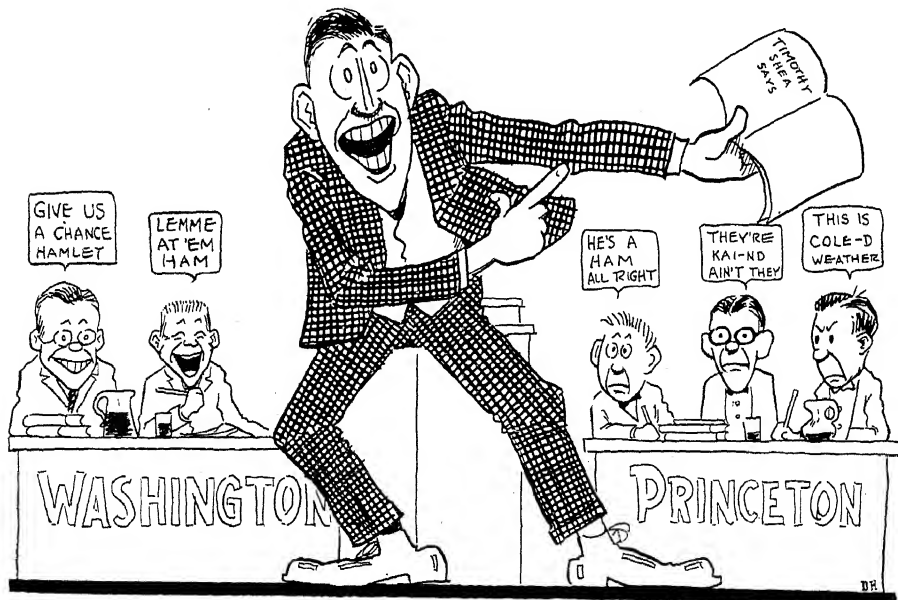

"This is the fourth run I've got today," said the stocking on the baseball player.

WENDELL BRACKETT

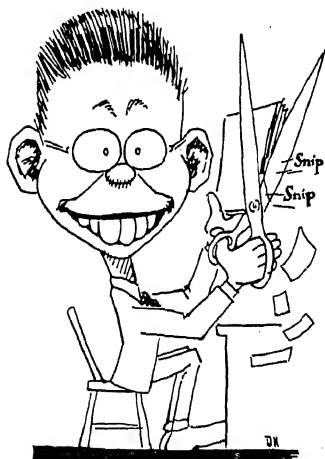

There was a young gent named Brackett,
Whose jaw, when it moved, made a racket.

He said what he thought,
Consequently said naught,
For brain he just seemed to lackett.

FRANK LOCKERBY

There was an assistant named Frank,
Whose puns were exceedingly rank.
His copy one day
Fell into the bay,
And his wit was so heavy it sank.

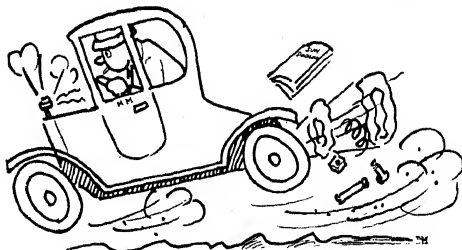

MERV McINNESS

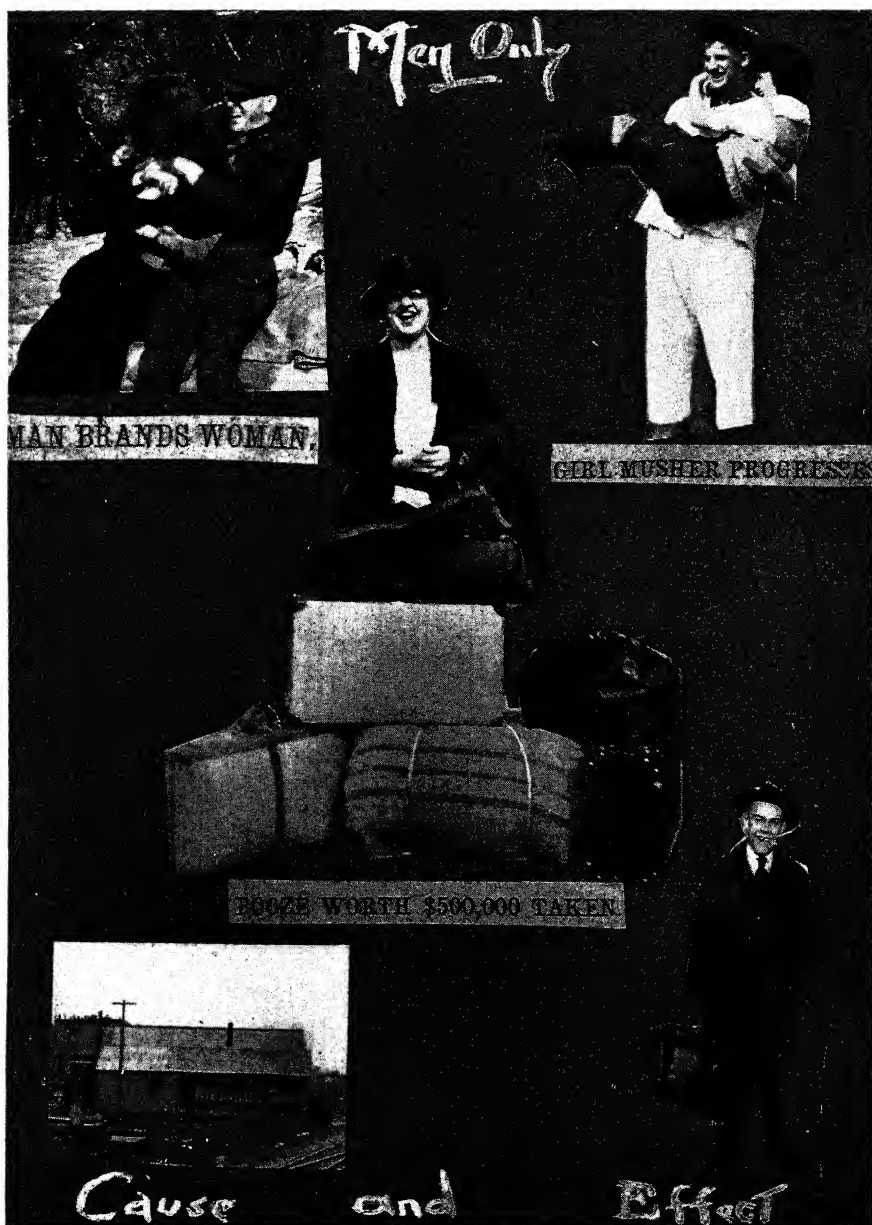

Merv McInness is rushing the can,
But for work he's a darn lazy man.
He would die in his tracks,
But here are the facts,
That he's simply too lazy. My land!

JOHN SEGESSENMAN

An artist there was, name of Jawn,
Whose pictures were all badly drawn.
We suspect in this case,
From the look of his face,
That his intellect's all gone to brawn.

PRIDE OF OWNERSHIP

There is a certain pride of ownership when one possesses an article of real merit and value.

Because of its attractiveness—because of its quality of tone—because of the dignity which it lends to its surroundings, there is no piano which the owner can be more truly proud of than the

BUSH & LANE GRAND

The Bush & Lane Grand is manufactured of the very best materials, and put together by real craftsmen. It has been the choice of musical artists and critics for many years. There is no better piano made.

Northwest Landscape Photographs

We have found a growing appreciation for our work in Landscape Photography. To those who are lovers of nature, there is an appreciation for this distinctive branch of photographic work, and a real inspiration in these scenes of beauty and wonder. Especially to those who have been privileged to travel over these scenes or similar ones, the pictures will speak again to them of mountain tops, dashing waterfalls, cool, dark canyons, silent, shady woodlands, and roaring ocean wave; and of the wonderful colorings of flowery dell and sunset sky.

These hand-colored nature scenes hung on the walls of office or home are like windows letting in the sunshine, beauty and inspiration of the "Great Out of Doors."

What Is Research?

SUPPOSE that a stove burns too much coal for the amount of heat that it radiates. The manufacturer hires a man familiar with the principles of combustion and heat radiation to make experiments which will indicate desirable changes in design. The stove selected as the most efficient is the result of research.

Suppose that you want to make a ruby in a factory—not a mere imitation, but a real ruby, indistinguishable by any chemical or physical test from the natural stone. You begin by analyzing rubies chemically and physically. Then you try to make rubies just as nature did, with the same chemicals and under similar conditions. Your rubies are the result of research—research of a different type from that required to improve the stove.

Suppose, as you melted up your chemicals to produce rubies and experimented with high temperatures, you began to wonder how hot the earth must have been millions of years ago when rubies were first crystallized, and what were the forces at play that made this planet what it is. You begin an investigation that leads you far from rubies and causes you to formulate theories to explain how the earth, and, for that matter, how the whole solar system was created. That would be research of a still different type—pioneering into the unknown to satisfy an insatiable curiosity.

Research of all three types is conducted in the Laboratories of the General Electric Company. But it is the third type of research—pioneering into the unknown—that means most, in the long run, even though it is undertaken with no practical benefit in view.

At the present time, for example, the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company are exploring matter with X-rays in order to discover not only how the atoms in different substances are arranged but how the atoms themselves are built up. The more you know about a substance, the more you can do with it. Some day this X-ray work will enable scientists to answer more definitely than they can now the question: Why is iron magnetic? And then the electrical industry will take a great step forward, and more real progress will be made in five years than can be made in a century of experimenting with existing electrical apparatus.

You can add wings and stories to an old house. But to build a new house, you must begin with the foundation.

HOMES
THAT'S OUR BUSINESS"

We claim a closer, more intimate acquaintance with University and North End properties than any and all other offices in Seattle. Since 1905 we have been listing, inspecting, appraising, selling and renting University and North End properties, and this has given us a more exact knowledge of values than is possible for any other office to have without the same years of experience.

We have a few vacancies on our salesmen's force for men of good education and address, energy and ambition. Applicants desiring to discuss a possible association with the leading Investment House in the Northwest, are invited to call on us promptly.

¶ It would be difficult—well-nigh impossible—to find a shop in this city where the best traditions of the old and honorable craft of designing and making of men's clothes by hand are more zealously guarded. To insure against the slightest deviation from these splendid standards, we go so far as to insist that every step in the process shall be done by our OWN artisans, under our OWN SUPERVISION, in our OWN shop.
